SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

(BERBICE.)

THIS 21ST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1902.

F. NICHOLSON
versus PARAIG.

In this matter there is nothing before the Court to show that a copy of the reasons of appeal has been served on the Respondent, although time has been granted to adduce proof of service.

Mr. Wills, who on a former occasion appeared for the appellant, now withdraws from the case with the leave of the Court, on the ground that appellant, who is alleged to have served a copy of the Reasons of Appeal, cannot be found for the purpose of swearing to an affidavit of such service.

The provisions of the Appeal Ordinance (sec. 6, sub sec 1 of Ord. 13 of 1893), not having been complied with, and there being practically no appearance by or on behalf of the appellant, the Appeal is dismissed, and the decision of the Magistrate affirmed with costs (if any).

586. 31st October, 1902.
HIS Excellency the Governor directs the publication of the following despatch received from His Excellency the Governor of Barbados, with reference to the arrangements made for transshipping cargo, by lightermen, at that port, during the period of quarantine:—

Government House,
20th October, 1902.

Sir,—I have the honour to confirm my telegram to you of the 17th instant, as follows:—

(TELEGRAM.)

"In order to remove objection to Barbados labourers who are all vaccinated working lighters in connexion with transshipping cargo, following arrangements will be in force for the future. Disinfected vessel kept in quarantine will be stationed Carlisle Bay with lightermen's clothes. Lightermen will swim naked to this vessel on Mail Saturdays and will remain in quarantine until all Mail Steamers sailed, when they will swim from the ship to the shore. Lighters and gear after disinfection will be towed to quarantine vessel where lightermen can be embarked, and they will be kept in quarantine alongside quarantine vessel until Mail Steamers sailed. Shall be glad to know that these arrangements approved by your quarantine authorities, or if any other steps should be taken. Lightermen are not allowed on board mail packets."

2. In further explanation I beg to state that it is intended prior to the 25th instant to place on board the Government steamer "Ida" a full supply of clothes for lightermen and moor the steamer at a suitable anchorage in Carlisle Bay at a proper distance from the shore, after which the steamer and clothes and everything else on board will be thoroughly and efficiently disinfected by the Port Medical Officers.

3. After disinfection this steamer will strictly quarantine the Island during the continuance of the epidemic.

4. On the morning of each mail Saturday the lightermen to be employed in lighters transshipping cargo from one mail steamer to another and who have all been recently vaccinated, will be conveyed from the shore to a distance of not less than 25 yards from the "Ida" and they will then denude themselves of all clothing and swim to that vessel and put on the disinfected clothes.

5. The lighters to be employed in transshipment of cargo will, with their necessary gear, be thoroughly and efficiently disinfected by the Port Medical Officers on the morning of each mail Saturday and will then be towed to the "Ida" by the other Government steamer and left there for use. The lighters and lightermen will have no communication whatever with the shore or anyone connected with it from this time until the work of transshipment of cargo is completed (usually on Monday evening), the lightermen sleeping on the intervening nights on board the "Ida" and the lighters remaining in the Bay around that vessel.

6. When their labour is completed on the Monday evening the lightermen will swim naked from the "Ida," leaving their working clothes to be washed on board of that vessel in quarantine and the lighters will be towed back to shore. The lightermen and caretakers on the "Ida" will be fed by stores obtained from the Royal Mail Steamers, as that vessel can have no communication whatever with the shore. The lightermen are not allowed to go on board the Mail Steamers.

7. Any attempt to commit a breach of the above arrangements will be frustrated by an efficient and constant guard of Harbour Police.

8. I beg to state that the Principal Government Medical Officer and the Port Medical Officers have declared that under circumstances such as these set forth above it is in their opinion absolutely impossible for the smallpox infection to be transmitted from the shore to any of the Royal Mail Steamers quarantining the island, and a certificate to this effect from one or other of the Port Medical Officers will be attached to the Bill of Health from each Steamer.

9. I also beg to state that Capt. Owen, the Superintendent of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, has expressed himself to be thoroughly satisfied with the above arrangements and to be as fully convinced of their conclusiveness as a safeguard against infection as the abovementioned Medical Authorities. Further, he has asked me to state to you officially on his behalf, that should your Government desire to send a Medical Inspector with each intercolonial Mail Steamer to Barbados to see whether the arrangements are bona fide and efficiently carried out, the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company will bring such official to Barbados and take him back to "British Guiana" on each occasion as a first class passenger free of charge.

10. I sincerely hope that these arrangements will be satisfactory to your Government.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

F. M. HODGSON,

His Excellency
The Governor,
British Guiana.

By Command,

A. M. ASHMORE,
Government Secretary.

THE following Draft Regulations, which it is proposed to introduce at the next meeting of the Governor and Court of Policy, are hereby published for general information.

By Command,

A. M. ASHMORE,
Government Secretary.

REGULATIONS UNDER THE RIVER NAVIGATION ORDINANCE, 1891, FOR BOAT TRAFFIC ON THE DEMERARA RIVER.

1. These Regulations may be cited for all purposes as the River Demerara Boat Regulations, 1902.

2. In these Regulations unless the context otherwise requires "The River" means the River Demerara below No. 2 Island.

"The Officer" means the person appointed under the River Navigation Ordinance, 1891, to have charge of the Navigation of the river.

"Vessel" means any kind of vessel used for navigation, other than a boat.

"Boat" includes any punt, bateau, ballahoo, or other description of vessel used for navigation, not having a covered deck, not being a boat belonging to any vessel trading, with or visiting the Colony or used only for purposes of pleasure, and does not include buckshells, corials or woodskins.

3. It shall not be lawful for any boat to ply on the river unless it has been inspected, and the person in charge of any boat, which has not been so inspected, found plying on the river shall be guilty of a breach of these Regulations.

4. No licence under the Annual Tax Ordinance shall be issued for any boat plying on the river until after production to the Treasury of a certificate from the officer that such boat has been duly inspected and passed on inspection by the officer during the twelve months immediately preceding the date of the application for such licence.

5. (1.) If on such inspection the officer is satisfied that a boat is in good order and fit for use on the river, he shall issue to the owner or person in charge a certificate to that effect in the Form No. 1. in Schedule I. Such certificates shall be numbered consecutively according to date of issue and a new series shall be commenced with the first certificate issued after the beginning of each financial year.

(2.) Such certificate shall continue in force during the financial year in which it is issued and no longer: Provided always that such certificate may be suspended or cancelled at any time by the officer by notice in writing to the owner or person in charge of the boat to which such certificate refers.

(3.) The number of the certificate, and the number of persons the boat (if a passenger boat) is licensed to carry, shall be legibly painted in black letters not less than three inches high on a white ground or white on a black ground on the inside starboard bow of the boat in respect of which the certificate has been issued.

6. (1.) If, on any such inspection a boat is found to be unsafe or unfit for use, the officer shall, within twenty four hours after such survey, give to the owner or person in charge of such boat a statement in writing of the particular defects which render such boat unsafe or unfit for use in the Form No. 2 in Schedule I, and shall, at the same time, require that the defects specified in such statement be made good before the boat is used on the river.

(2.) If after receipt of such statement and requisition by the owner or person in charge such boat is used on the river without the said defects having been made good the owner or person in charge of such boat shall be guilty of a breach of these Regulations.

7. Every boat carrying freight or ballast or passengers shall be marked with a load line outside, on each side amidships, such line to be four feet in length and one inch wide, and to be painted white on a black ground or black on a white ground. The load line shall be placed so as to allow three and one-half inches of freeboard to each foot depth of boat measured from flooring to gunwale amidships.

8. Any person in charge of a boat on the River which is so loaded as to immerse any portion of the load line shall be guilty of a breach of these Regulations.

9. No more than three vessels or boats shall be made fast or secured abreast to any vessel either alongside any stelling or moored or anchored in the river, and if more than three are so made fast or secured the person in charge of each vessel or boat beyond the first three so made fast or secured shall be guilty of a breach of these Regulations.

10. The person in charge of any vessel or boat not under way shall not allow any steering oar or sweep to project beyond such vessel or boat.

11. (1.) Licensed passenger boats licensed under Ordinance No. 4 of 1855 plying for hire alongside any vessel with passengers shall until called lie not less than thirty feet away from such vessel and ahead of the accommodation ladder or gangway.

(2.) Such boats when called shall go to such ladder or gangway at such time and in such order as the River Office, an Officer of the vessel, Customs Officer, or Police Officer may direct. The said Officers shall for the purpose of giving such directions take precedence in the order named.

(3.) Only one such boat at a time shall go alongside the accommodation ladder or gangway.

(4.) No boat taking passengers to any vessel shall go alongside while another boat is at the ladder or gangway, and if more than one such boat is going to the ladder or gangway they shall go to it in such order as may be directed by any of the persons last mentioned.

12. Every boat (with the exception of passenger boats passed by the Harbour Master under Ordinance 4 of 1855) carrying passengers on the river shall have a large P, nine inches in length, painted on both bows on the outside. No such boat shall carry more persons (crew included) than the number specified in the certificate.

13. The Officer shall keep a Register of all certificates issued under these Regulations.

14. Every person who commits a breach of or fails to comply with any of these Regulations, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars.

15. The fees set forth in Schedule II to these Regulations shall be payable to the Officer in respect of the several matters therein mentioned, who shall pay the same into the Treasury for the public use of the Colony.

16. The River Demerara (Georgetown Harbour) Boat Regulation, 1897, and the Regulations amending the same, approved by the Governor and Court of Policy on the 3rd day of May, 1900, are hereby repealed.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH
GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 25TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1902.

SANTOS

versus

DA SILVA.

The plaintiff, by this action, claims damages from the defendant for giving the plaintiff's son in custody on a charge of theft.

From the evidence, it appears that the defendant received some information about some rules and knives which were alleged to have been stolen from his store. He took stock of the department in which the knives and rules were kept, and it was alleged, there was a shortage. Santos, the plaintiff's son, and another clerk, de Freitas, were in charge of that department. The defendant sent for Santos and told him that he had stolen the rules, and given them to his father to sell to one Pestano. Santos denied the accusation. A detective was sent for. Santos says that the defendant told the detective, that he, Santos, had stolen the rules, and he must take him in charge. Santos further states that the detective said he was to go along with him, and that he was taken as a prisoner to the Brickdam Police Station. The detective, Benn, says that the defendant said this boy (Santos), has stolen some rules and that he was to take him away. Benn, however, states that defendant was in such a passion, that he made enquiries from the clerks himself, and after hearing them he told the defendant, the police would not make a charge; that he asked the three clerks to come to the Brickdam to lay the matter before his superior officer. He further states that Santos asked if he was going to be locked up, and he told him no, but as the other two clerks were coming, he wanted him to come to hear for himself. The detective expressly states that he did not arrest Santos and that if he had refused to come, he would not have taken him without receiving a charge.

I consider that the detective's account of what occurred is the correct one. It is admitted by Santos that part of the way to the Brickdam, he walked with Carvalho some considerable distance in front of the detective. The minute of transactions kept by Sergt.-Major Hakim at the detective office, states: "Santos Clerk in said store who also came here is suspected." I think if Santos had been brought under arrest, it would have been so stated. The minute was made at the time without any thought of proceedings being taken. What occurred subsequently at the Station, even if it could be held there was a detention of Santos, could not affect the defendant.

I think that Santos was never taken into custody, nor subject to any physical restraint, and as it is on this ground alone damages are asked, this case must fail. There will be judgment for the defendant with costs.

versus

NURSE.

In this matter, objections have been taken as to the validity of the writ. It is said that as the statement of claim indorsed on the writ is headed "indorsement of writ," and not "statement of claim," the writ is bad as not following the form given in the appendix to the Rules of Court. It certainly would be better if practitioners were to follow the forms given, but I do not consider that a departure from those forms would make the writ invalid, if the forms are followed in substance. The words "indorsement of writ" are surplusage and the writ is therefore in the same position as if the words "statement of claim" are omitted. I have already decided in Norton v. Gonsalves (1st March, 1902,) that the omission of these words does not invalidate the writ.

The other objection is that the address of the plaintiff is stated in the copy of the writ served on the defendant to be 144, Light Street, whereas the real address is 114, Light Street. The address is correctly stated in the original writ. There appears to be a clerical error in the copy. Such clerical error would not invalidate the writ. Even if the address was not truly stated in the writ, the writ would not be invalid, but the plaintiff would be ordered to amend by stating the correct address or, in default, proceedings would be stayed.

It is further objected that the plaintiff's occupation is not indorsed in the writ. The writ is issued by the plaintiff in person and by order V r. 2, a plaintiff suing in person shall indorse upon the writ of summons his place of residence and occupation, &c. The rules must be compiled with, see Story v. Rees, 24 Q. B. D. 748, and the plaintiff should have stated his occupation. The indorsement is therefore insufficient but leave is granted to amend, the plaintiff paying the costs of the day which I allow at $5.

LIMITED JURISDICTION (BERBICE.)

THIS 29TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1902

versus

JHANJOO.

This is an action, in detinue, by the plaintiff in which he seeks to recover from the defendant twenty-one head of cattle or their value $231, and the sum of $19 as damages for the detention of the animals.

The statement of claim alleges that on or about the month of January, 1902, the defendant seized and took possession of the 21 head of cattle which were then grazing in the New Forest Pasture, in the county of Berbice, and colony of British Guiana, and now detains the same, demand for the delivery of the animals having been made by plaintiff without effect.

In defence the defendant denies that he on or about the month of January, 1902, or at any other time seized or took possession of 21 head of cattle or any cattle belonging to defendant, or that he detains any cattle belonging to the defendant. He further declares that the 21 head of cattle as described by the plaintiff in the statement of claim are not the property of the plaintiff but are his (defendant's) bona fide property.

Plaintiff and defendant are brothers, for many years they lived together with their mother acquiring cattle in common. The cattle thus obtained were branded J. H. from a brand first used when defendant was at about 8 years of age. Subsequently plaintiff went to live at No. 2 and then the cattle were divided, five head going to defendant and his mother, and plaintiff taking three head. Plaintiff swears that he went on increasing his stock, continuing to use, for his own cattle, the brand J. H. and that his wife also had cattle which she branded with her own brand A.

Plaintiff's wife died about two years ago, and after a time he cohabited with another woman, who, it is said, was his younger brother's wife. This connection led to dissensions between himself and the defendant, and it is then, it is alleged, the latter kept plaintiff from the possession of his cattle. It is in evidence that on one occasion, plaintiff branded one of his animals already branded J. H. with a new brand B. X. 41, which he had registered and that in consequence thereof, the defendant sued him before the Magistrate for possession of the animal then branded but was non-suited. Plaintiff declares that he did not brand any more of his cattle B. X. 41, as defendant threatened to prosecute him and did actually hear him. A witness, Tirbowen, called for the plaintiff stated that he knew plaintiff had cattle branded J. H. that he had bought cattle so branded from him and that defendant himself admitted that he branded plaintiff's cattle for him and took care of them.

Albert Rossau also called by the plaintiff, gave similar evidence as to the purchase of cattle branded J. H. from plaintiff. Mr. William de Groot, a clerk in the Registrar's Office, Berbice, gave evidence as to a meeting at his house at No. 2, which was called to settle a dispute between plaintiff and defendant, (Panchayet). He said it was customary among coolies to have meetings of this sort to settle disputes. On this occasion plaintiff complained that he had 20 head of cattle with defendant's brand on them, and defendant refused to give him those cattle. Witness says:—"I asked defendant if that was true and he said yes. Roodhoo, Bholaye, and others were there. Defendant said he had 20 head of cattle belonging to plaintiff with his (defendant's) brand on them. Defendant said he would not give them up because plaintiff had done a rascally deed—he was not supporting his mother. He also said plaintiff's reputed wife had died, and he had taken his brother's reputed wife as his own. I advised them to settle the matter without going into Court. Defendant said he would give up the 20 head of cattle to plaintiff, and then I suggested plaintiff should give him something for his trouble, as he always looked after the cattle. Plaintiff offered to give defendant six head out of the 20. Defendant refused, saying he wanted 10 head. I suggested plaintiff should see if he could not give more. Plaintiff said he would give seven head, and defendant agreed to take that. Both agreed, and left my premises. Next day both came to me and asked me to make receipts for those said cattle." But the witness evidently remembering the Legal Practitioner's Ordinance, referred both parties to a lawyer. The agreement came to at Mr. de Groot's house was never reduced to writing because at his lawyer's office where both parties subsequently went, plaintiff introduced a question as to the division of a piece of land and defendant went away declaring he had come to sign an agreement about cattle, not about land.

Plaintiff now claims 21 head because, he says, in addition to the 20 admitted by defendant the latter took one of his cattle branded A, and marked it with his own brand J. H. It seems to me taking the evidence as a whole that plaintiff owned a number of animals branded J. H. which were in the possession of or control of defendant. The latter admitted that he had twenty head of cattle belonging to plaintiff and he agreed to give thirteen of them up, on the latter consenting to let him retain seven out of the number. This agreement shows plainly, to my mind, that defendant was in possession of plaintiff's cattle, detaining them in fact. He could not give them up as he agreed to do unless they were in his possession and I have no doubt, from the evidence of plaintiff and his witnesses, that he prevented the plaintiff enjoying what really belonged to him; in a word, debarred him using his rights as owner over these cattle by keeping them himself. Otherwise there would have been no occasion for the meeting referred to by de Groot.

In his statement of claim plaintiff has described each of the animals he claims, and in his defence defendant has repeated those descriptions and declared that the animals so described are his "bona fide" property.

Plaintiff has clearly therefore so described the animals as to enable the defendant to identify them.

When one party claims certain property from another, and that other without any express denial of possession, denies the right of the claimant to the same, and claims them as his own, it is, I think, a reasonable presumption, even apart from other circumstances, that the property claimed is in the possession and under the control of the latter. In this case defendant does not deny that the cattle claimed from him are in his possession, he simply describes them in detail which description tallies with that of plaintiff, and declares they do not belong to the plaintiff but to himself.

Counsel for defendant argued that plaintiff had made out no case which would warrant the Court in giving judgment in his favour. He contended that there was an entire absence of any evidence to show that defendant seized and took possession of plaintiff's cattle or that he detained them or that they are or were in his possession. Without proof of this kind he urged defendant was entitled to judgment. The cattle were grazing in different places and plaintiff had not been prevented taking them.

With reference to the allegation that defendant on or about the month of January [seized and took possession of 21 head of cattle] I am of opinion that the point is immaterial to the issue. The injurious act being the wrongful detention of the goods, and not the original taking or obtaining of the possession, it is immaterial whether they were obtained by the defendant by lawful means as by a bailment or finding or by a wrongful act as by trespass or conversion. The usual evidence of the detention is that the defendant having the possession or control over the goods does not deliver them up to the plaintiff when demanded. Here there is defendant's admission that he had twenty head of cattle belonging to plaintiff and it is shown that a written demand was made for their delivery but without effect. Moreover there is the uncontradicted statement of the plaintiff that he heard defendant tell the police not to allow any cattle branded J. H. to pass without his permission. In the absence of any evidence for the defence I am of opinion for the reasons given that plaintiff is entitled to judgment and I accordingly direct that the 21 animals claimed be delivered to him or that defendant pays the value of the same, at the rate of $11 per head. I have considered carefully the fact that plaintiff, during the negotiations with defendant, agreed to give the latter seven out of the 20 head then claimed, and I have asked myself whether I could or should give effect to that in this judgment by awarding the plaintiff seven less than he now claims. I find, however, that such a judgment might give rise to future and further complications, and that in doing so I might be awarding defendant compensation for services which he had not in reality rendered, and of which there was no proof before me. It will be better I think to leave him to take whatever action he may think proper, if he considers or he advised that he has rendered plaintiff any services which entitle him to reward.

I make no order on the claim for damages.

Plaintiff is entitled to costs, except costs already awarded.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

(APPEAL FROM COMMISSIONER OF MINES).

THIS 31ST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1902.

MENZIES, appellant.

versus

MARSHALL SYNDICATE, respondents.

This is an appeal from a decision of the Acting Commissioner of Lands and Mines on a complaint heard and determined by him under Part VIII of the Mining Regulations 1899-1901.

The complaint alleged that 68 mining claims therein described were between the 4th and 7th of November, 1901, duly located by the respondents, by one Klautkey, one of their servants acting under the direction of Clementson, another of their servants; that on the 24th of November, 1901, Klautkey, by direction of Clementson, removed the location boards from 48 of the claims and substituted therefor location boards in the appellant's name, and at the same time located 10 additional claims, in the name of the appellant using "the labor and means" of the respondents for the purpose, that on the 27th of November, 1901, the respondents' location boards were removed from the remaining 20 of the said 68 claims by a servant of the appellant, with the knowledge of Klautkey and Clementson, and location boards of the appellants substituted for them; that another servant of the appellant and Klautkey and Clementson, in writing, agreed in effect to divide the said 48 claims between them, the appellant giving a written acknowledgment that he had no interest in the 48 claims; and that the fraud mentioned did not come to the respondents' knowledge in time for them to oppose (as is provided by the Regulations) the granting of claim licences to the appellant; and the complaint prayed not for any relief which the Commissioner is empowered to grant, but that the Governor would not grant claim licences to the appellant or if such licences had been given would revoke them under Regulation 30 of the Amended Mining Regulations 1899, and would grant the respondents claim licences for the said 78 claims.

The appellant by his answer denied the facts averred in the complaint and stated that if any fraud had been perpetrated (which he denied) it was not alleged nor was it the fact that he was a party thereto. He further contended that the complaint disclosed no cause of action within the Commissioner's jurisdiction; that the respondents had failed to enter any opposition to the grant of claim licences to him in accordance with Regulation 26 and could not do so now, the claim licences having already been granted, and even if they could, the opposition entered must be held bad as instead of a single opposition and deposit intended to cover all the claims, a separate opposition and deposit should have been entered and made in respect of each claim; that if a revocation of the claim licences was desired a petition to the Governor was the proper mode of proceeding; that the respondents had not complied with Regulations 10, 12 to 17 (both inclusive) 20 and 25 in respect of these claims and even the Governor could not legally grant them licences without such compliance.

At the hearing the appellant raised (beside another preliminary objection) the preliminary objections (1) that the Commissioner could not hear the case, as it should be an appeal to the Governor and not a complaint to the Commissioner, no remedy being asked from the Commissioner, and (2) that the respondents not having complied with Regulation 20 (non-compliance with which renders a location void), could not question the appellant's locations. These objections were over-ruled by the Commissioner, the first on the ground that the case came within Regulation 134, and the second (the fact stated being admitted) on the ground that the complaint was that the location papers were not duly filed, in consequence of the fraud complained of. Evidence was taken, and the Commissioner decided that all the 78 claims were duly located for the respondents by their servants, and that the appellant obtained claim licences for them through fraud. From this decision the appellant has appealed, on the ground (among others) that the Commissioner had no jurisdiction in the case.

It is, I think, clear that the respondents did not claim that under the Regulations alone, and solely by virtue of compliance with them, they were at the date of their complaint either entitled to occupy or to be deemed to have lawfully located the lands to which the case relates,—but at most they claimed that in the absence of fraud on the part of the appellant, they would or might have complied fully with the Regulations, and have been entitled to occupy the lands, or to be deemed to have lawfully located them, notwithstanding the claim licences held by the appellant, the granting of which they would or might have opposed if there had been no fraud. The case (in other words) was not one in which a decision was required simply as to the complainants' compliance or non-compliance with the Mining law, and as to their rights arising from such compliance or non-compliance as against the appellant, but was one in which relief was sought on equitable grounds, on the ground of alleged fraud on the part of the appellant. None of the provisions of the existing law, in my opinion, confer on the Commissioner jurisdiction to hear and determine such cases. His jurisdiction depends on the Mining Regulations, 1899-1901, which are made under a power given to the Governor and Court of Policy by section 27 of the Mining Ordinance, 1897, as amended by section 5 of Ordinance No. 12 of 1895, and section 25 of Ordinance 15 of 1896. That enactment prescribes that penalties for breaches of the Regulations made thereunder shall be recoverable under the Summary Jurisdiction Ordinances, and therefore any jurisdiction conferred on the Commissioner or any other Government Officer under the Regulations must be not a criminal or quasi-criminal jurisdiction, but of a purely civil nature, and like all other civil jurisdictions, it authorises its possessor to inquire into and settle such questions, and such questions only, arising between different parties, as come within his jurisdiction, or (in other words) as he is empowered to hear and determine.

The classes of cases and questions (other than cases of "jumping" claims) in and over which the Commissioner has jurisdiction are specified in Regulation 134 and it is contended that the present case comes within the class therein mentioned of "disputes as to what land is or is not lawfully occupied or has or has not been lawfully located." As the Regulations are made under and for the purpose of the Mining Ordinance, the disputes referred to must all, in my opinion, be disputes arising under the Mining Law and prima facie the Commissioner would have no jurisdiction as to any disputes which arise from, or the determination of which depends on, or involves, any matter outside of the Regulations. It follows from this that the class of disputes just mentioned is limited to disputes in which a claimant seeks to prove that by virtue of compliance with the Mining Law and without proof of any other facts he at the date of his complaint (a) is lawfully in occupation of or entitled to occupy certain lands which another party also claims to occupy under the same law; or (b) must be held to have lawfully located certain lands which another party claims to have located under the same provisions, and that such class therefore does not include a case like the present wherein it is sought to annul on the ground of fraud, certain acts done by the appellant under the Regulations and on the same ground to excuse the respondents from strict compliance with some of the Regulations. This conclusion is fortified by the facts that Regulation 134 which is of the nature of an enactment conferring jurisdiction on a special tribunal and therefore must be strictly construed (Dicta of Best, J. Kite and Lane's case, 1 B. & C. 101; Fortescue, J. in Pierce v Hopper, 1 Str. 260; Keating, J., L. R., 7 Ex., 296), does not expressly confer a more extensive jurisdiction than the one already mentioned and that the existence of such jurisdiction is not necessarily to be implied, there being (as in the present case, where relief is sought on the ground of fraud) other remedies known to the law, of which a complainant may avail himself, and is also supported by the decision of Chalmers, C.J. (Winter v. Faroum & Co., L.R., B.G., vol. II., N.S., Rev. Cases 15) as to the jurisdiction conferred by Regulation 52 of the Mining Regulations, 1887, which is in the same terms as the provision already mentioned in Regulation 134 of the Amended Mining Regulations, 1899.

The first reason for appeal must, therefore, in my opinion, prevail, and the order of the Acting Commissioner be declared to be null and void. It is unnecessary under the circumstances to express any opinion as to the validity of the reasons for appeal other than the first, or to comment on the apparent laxity of principle indicated by the evidence in this case. The Court will not make any order as to costs.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION

THIS 5TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

CLARKE, Appellant,

versus

H. T. KING, Respondent.

This is an appeal from a decision of Mr. W. M. Williams, Stipendiary Magistrate, Demerara River Judicial District, convicting the appellant on a charge that he being a person who had taken out a licence to keep and use a colony craft, to wit, a corial, did not produce and deliver such licence to be examined and read by the respondent, who is a Commissary of Taxation, within a reasonable time after he requested the production of the same.

The reasons for appeal are that the decision (1) is altogether unwarranted by the evidence, and (2) is erroneous in point of law, as there was evidence that the licence was produced and delivered within a reasonable time.

At the hearing of this appeal several preliminary objections to the affidavit of service of notice of appeal and of the reasons of appeal were raised on behalf of the respondent. As, however, it was admitted by the respondent's counsel that he could not contest the service of such notice within the time prescribed by law and the objections were of a purely formal character, the hearing was proceeded with, the appellant's counsel undertaking to file an amended affidavit, if the Court decided that it was necessary to require this to be done.

The objections taken were nearly all based on Order xxxiv, Rules 14, 15, 20 and 22 of the Rules of Court, 1900. Assuming that Order applies it does, not take away but expressly recognises the Courts power to permit the affidavit to be used, notwithstanding the formal defects therein; and as indicated at the hearing I think its use should under the circumstances be allowed.

The two reasons for appeal are in substance covered by the first as the question whether the licence was produced and delivered within a reasonable time was a question of fact to be determined by the magistrate after hearing the evidence as to all the circumstances of the case just as it must have been determined by the jury had the question been tried by a Judge and jury. (Goodwyn v. Cheveley, 28 L. J. Ex. 298.) The sole question therefore, for this Court to decide is was there sufficient evidence to support the magistrate's decision.

The evidence other than that detailed later on in this judgment shows that the Commissary went to the appellant's landing on the bank of the river and saw a corial there, that he sent two men from his boat to examine the corial and ascertain its number, that the appellant appeared on the scene, was requested by the Commissary to produce his licence and went to his house and returned with a piece of blue paper in his hand "which" (the Commissary states) "appeared to be a licence"; that he was told by one of the Commissary's men to take the licence to the Commissary, but did not do so; that the Commissary gave the appellant nine minutes to produce his licence from the time it was first demanded and remained at the landing more than 20 minutes from that time; that the appellant's boat was removed to the police station but "subsequently" (when precisely is not stated) the appellant produced his licence by the Revd. Rymer and the boat was given up.

It was urged on the appellant's behalf that he had complied within a reasonable time with the Commissary's request to produce and deliver the licence, as the Commissary was at the time separated from him by a mud flat left by the falling tide and his (the appellant's) boat had been pushed down to the river, and he could not reasonably be required to walk across the mud flat to deliver the licence to the Commissary.

The only evidence bearing on the points raised by counsel is as follows:—The Commissary states: "I called at defendant's landing at Hanover. There was a corial there at the landing, high up, the tide had fallen and left it there. . . . The men I sent began shoving down the boat into the water. . . . My men succeeded in removing the craft, in the meantime I called out to defendant to produce his licence, he went to his house and came back with a piece of blue paper in his hand which appeared to be a licence." The only other witness for the prosecution, after mentioning the appellant's going to his house after he was asked for his licence adds, he "returned with a blue paper in his hand pointing it out and saying 'see it here the number is on the craft, I didn't care two damns all of you can carry it so I know the licence is on it,' and we took corial away." The appellant, in his evidence on his own behalf, states, "Mr. King said shove the corial, I said wait till I get licence. Tacoorali" (one of the Commissary's men) "said to me go for my licence. I said let corial remain. I went for licence. I then went and stood some time but returned with it after some time. I saw corial outside into water . . . Lewis" (another of the Commissary's men) "was near to me on float-wood . . . Lewis told me to take it (i.e. the licence) to Commissary at low tide. I said if he wanted it he should not have shoved out. I said I am not going to dead low tide. . . . I said carry the corial." Another witness for the defence states that appellant on returning from his house with the licence "found corial at water mark." Appellant's wife examined for the defence states "Mr. King said defendant was to bring licence to him and he was out at mud flat and my husband didn't carry it and the hucksell was shoved out." In rebuttal of the evidence for the defence a witness states "defendant could have walked down to boat, he never did."

Section 28 of the Miscellaneous Licences Ordinance, 1861, does not require the production and delivery of a licence forthwith on request thereof being made but "within a reasonable time after" such request. What is a reasonable time must depend in each case on the circumstances under which the request is made, and also complying with the request in my opinion must be reasonably practicable without exceptional difficulty to bring a case of non-production or non-delivery within the section, which (as has been said of an analogous provision in English Law) is designed not for oppression but for the reasonable protection of the revenue. For example, a Commissary standing on one side of a muddy trench and requesting a man on the farther side to produce and deliver a gun licence could not reasonably require the licence holder to walk or wade across the trench to deliver it though it may be possible for him to do so, nor prima facie could a Commissary reasonably require a licence holder to make his way across a bank of mud left exposed by a falling tide in order to deliver his licence, and in either of such cases the licence holder even if he be bound to comply with the demand must be granted some latitude in doing so, though in both cases it might be (strictly speaking) possible for him to deliver the licence in a shorter time than he actually does.

As already stated it appears from the evidence in this case that the licence holder produced and delivered his licence to the Commissary some time after the latter had left the landing. The exact time of such delivery is not stated nor is there any precise evidence as to the extent and condition of the exposed mud-flat, the existence of which is established, and on the facts before the Court already mentioned I am of opinion that the evidence was insufficient to establish beyond reasonable doubt that the appellant was guilty of a breach of the enactment.

The appeal is, therefore, allowed and the Magistrate's decision reversed with costs.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 7TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

THOMAS ROY, Acting Manager of the Demerara Railway Company, Appellant,
versus

W. HODGSON, Respondent.

The appellant, in this case, made a complaint before Mr. F. A. Gall, Specially Magistrate, East Coast Judicial District, against the respondent, charging him with a breach of one of the by-laws made by the Demerara Railway Company under a power conferred on the Company by statute.

On the case coming on for hearing a preliminary objection was taken on behalf of the respondent, that the Magistrate had no jurisdiction to deal with it. The Magistrate, after hearing what was said on behalf of the appellant and of the respondent, upheld the objection, without going into the merits of the case, and the complainant in the Court below has appealed to this Court.

The first question which arises is whether the matter can be brought before this Court by way of appeal. Section 3 of the Magistrates' Decision (Appeals) Ordinance, 1893, limits the cases in which an appeal may be brought to those where there has been a decision of the Court acting in the exercise of its civil or summary criminal jurisdiction and in accordance therewith the admissible reasons for appeal stated in Section 9 are all of them applicable to those cases only in which a Magistrate has exercised jurisdiction. In those cases the Magistrate having exercised his jurisdiction is functus officio, and has no interest in the appeal or its result and the only persons interested are the parties to the civil or criminal proceeding in which the decision appealed from has been given. Hence the law provides for a notice of appeal only being served on the Magistrate to enable him to comply with the provisions of the Ordinance (sections, 15 and 18), as to entering the notice in the Record Book of his Court and transmitting to the Registrar a certified copy of the proceedings in the case.

Where, however, a Magistrate does not exercise jurisdiction but holds that he has no jurisdiction or (in other words) declines jurisdiction, sections 44 and 45 of the Ordinance provide the means for bringing before this Court the question whether the Magistrate was right in so doing. The Magistrate in such cases is an interested party, as it is sought to compel him to do something which he has refused to do, and therefore provision is made in cases coming under section 44, for due notice being given him of the intended application to the Court and in cases within section 45 for service on him of a rule to show cause why the desired act should not be done.

It was urged on behalf of the appellant that the Magistrate had not in this case refused to entertain the case at all, but had issued a summons and the case had come on for hearing in the usual way and therefore section 44 did not apply. Even if this were so (a point which it is not necessary to determine) and if there were no other section of the Ordinance governing the case, the absence of provision for such a case could not extend the express enactment contained in section 3 so as to make it include this case. But the present case is not unprovided for as it is within section 45 which, like the English enactment, 11 and 12 Vict. c. 44 s. 5, (from which it is adapted) in my opinion applies to every case in which a Magistrate declines jurisdiction, at whatever stage of the proceedings he may have done so. (R. v. Brown, 26 L.J. Mag. Ca. 183).

The case of Gomes v. Demerara Electric Light Co., (30 May, 1902) was cited as shewing that the Court would, if a Magistrate declined jurisdiction, determine, on an appeal being brought, whether he was right in holding he had no jurisdiction. It appears, however,

(as pointed out by Smith, J., in his judgments of the 30th of May and 30th of June, 1902,) that, although the language used by the Magistrate was infelicitous, he did not in that case decline jurisdiction but gave a decision on the merits that the plaintiff did not have a cause of action even if all the facts alleged by him were proved. That case therefore does not support the argument based on it.

In my opinion, the Magistrate having in the present case declined jurisdiction, the question whether he was right in so doing cannot be brought before this Court by way of appeal, and the Court has no power on appeal to make any order binding on the Magistrate, and in obeying which he would be protected. The appeal must therefore be dismissed without prejudice to any other proceedings in the matter. The respondent appeared in person and the Court, therefore, does not make any order as to costs.

GUIANA PUBLIC BUILDINGS,

THE following Report on the Post Office Savings Bank for the year 1901, is hereby published in terms of Section 36, Sub-Section 3, of the Savings Bank Ordinance, 1889.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Clerk of the Executive Council.

REPORT ON THE POST OFFICE SAVINGS BANK FOR THE YEAR 1901.

GENERAL POST OFFICE,
GEORGETOWN, DEMERARA,

12th June, 1902,

Sir,—I have the honour to submit for the Governor's information my Report shewing the working of the Post Office Savings Bank during the twelve months ended on the 31st day of December, 1901, in terms of section 36 of the Savings Bank Ordinance 1889.

This Report is the thirteenth Administration Report.

The usual Tables are appended.

2. Reduction in rate of interest.—By Resolution passed in the Combined Court on the 22nd day of November, 1901, the rate of interest payable to depositors was reduced from three dollars per centum per annum to two dollars and forty cents per centum per annum, such reduction to take effect from the 1st day of April, 1902.

3. Transactions.—In the first table is shewn the number of transactions at each office, together with the balance at the credit of depositors at the opening and at the close of the year. The amount at the credit of depositors on the 1st of January, 1901, was $222,589 13, and at the 31st of December, 1901, it had increased by the sum of $12,485 21, and amounted to $235,074 34. This increase is satisfactory in view of the general depression and dulness of trade in the Colony, referred to in previous reports, and which continued to prevail throughout this year.

4. Analysis of Accounts.—From the third table, an analysis of Depositors' Accounts, it will be seen that as compared with the previous year's working, an increase is shewn in accounts ranging from $10 to $500. A decrease is shewn in accounts over $500. As the object of the Post Office Bank is to provide for the safe custody and increase of the small savings of the poorer classes of the people, the use of the Bank for the temporary deposit of large sums awaiting investment is rather to be deprecated, as being somewhat of a departure from the object of the Institution.

5. Occupation of depositors.—The fifth table deals with this subject and shews that the principal increase was in labourers. About one third of the entire number of depositors come under that head.

6. Nationality of depositors.—The amount at credit of different classes of depositors is shewn in Table VI. It appears that during the year under report the East Indians failed to maintain the position they have usually taken as the principal class to increase capital. The accumulations under the head of "Creole and others" were increased by $13,308 03.

7. Fluctuation of business.—This is shewn in Table VII and was not dissimilar to the fluctuation in previous years. In April and May, and again about the months of July and August, it is usual for the withdrawals to exceed the deposits, shewing a decreased ability of depositors to accumulate savings during those months.

8. Investments.—The 3 o/o Victoria Stock of the face value of £2,096. 18. 8, purchased in 1899 at 95½ o/o, was sold at 97 o/o, and the 3 o/o New Zealand Stock of the face value of £4,086. 15. 11, purchased at 97½ o/o in 1898, was sold at 98½ o/o. The proceeds of these two sales were re-invested in British Guiana Inscribed Stock of the face value of £7,300 at 3 o/o and a small sum of £2.3.2, discount for payment in advance of purchase money of the Inscribed Stock, was invested in 3 o/o W. Australia Stock, purchased at 91½. The total sum invested is shewn as $209,101. 16 at the close of the year.

9. Interest Account.—This appears in Table IX, and shews that by the investments surplus interest amounting to $759. 09 was obtained, over and above the sums paid as Interest to depositors or capitalized. The surplus was paid into the Colony Chest towards re-imbursement of the cost of the Institution. The amount is small, but upon a reference to Table VIII it will be seen that very few of the investments have been made at a higher rate than 3 o/o, the same rate as the interest allowed to the depositors. By the reduction of this latter rate to $2.40 o/o as from the 1st April last, a greater surplus may be anticipated in the future, and the expenditure will also be reduced in the future, so as to put the matter on a more satisfactory footing.

10. Staff.—I was absent on leave for the greater part of the period under report, and my duties in relation to the management and control of the Post Office Savings Banks devolved upon Mr. A. W. Swain, Chief Clerk of the Postal Department, who acted as Postmaster General, and I am indebted to him for the satisfactory manner in which those duties were performed.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

F. W. COLLIER,
Postmaster General.

The Honourable
The Government Secretary.

Judicial Notice.SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

ARTHUR LIONEL DOWNER, Esquire, of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, having been admitted to practise before the Supreme Court of British Guiana on the 13th day of November, 1902, and having taken the usual Oath before His Honour, Sir Henry Alleyne Bovell, Knight, Chief Justice of British Guiana, all persons are required to respect the said Arthur Lionel Downer accordingly.

Registrar's Office of British Guiana, Georgetown,
Demerary, this 14th day of November, 1902.

By Command,

M. P. OLTON,
Registrar

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 8TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

JONES, Appellant,

versus

IGNACIO, Respondent.

In this appeal a preliminary objection was taken that the appellant had not complied with section 16 of the Magistrates, Decisions, (Appeals) Ordinance 1893. This section requires the appellant to enter into a recognizance with "at least one sufficient surety" for the due prosecution of the appeal. The recognizance is not signed by any surety. Section 23 of the same Ordinance provides that if it is shown that the appellant has not complied with the requirements of section 16, the Court shall dismiss the "appeal and affirm the decision, &c."

It is said on behalf of the respondent, that the Magistrate said the recognizance was sufficient. Even if this were so, the Court would be obliged by section 23 to dismiss the appeal. The appellant was represented by a solicitor, and one would imagine it was part of the solicitor's duty to see the recognizance properly executed. If it was not properly executed the appellant might possibly have petitioned under section 11 for an extension of time to perfect his appeal. I would also point out that the affidavit of service is defective. The last day for serving reasons of appeal was the 24th September, 1902. The affidavit states that the reasons were posted on the 24th September, 1902; there is nothing to show at what time they were posted and if they would reach the respondent in usual course of post on the same day.

The appellant's solicitor asked to be allowed to file an affidavit remedying this defect and also to show that the magistrate said the recognizance signed was sufficient. I, however, before considering the question heard the appeal on its merits. The whole appeal is on the ground that the Magistrate should have believed the claimant and her witnesses. I do not consider there is any good ground for the appeal and it would therefore be useless to give the appellant leave to file affidavits.

The appeal must be dismissed with costs.

A. V. LUCIE SMITH, J.

NICHOLLS, Appellant,

versus

FERREIRA, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of the Magistrate upholding the claim of the respondent to a cottage levied on by the appellant by virtue of a judgment obtained by him against Creno Ferreira.

There are three reasons of appeal: (1) That the Magistrate's Court had no jurisdiction in the case; (2) that there was no evidence to show that the cottage levied on came under the category of goods and chattels; and (3) that the decision was obtained by fraud.

The claim is headed "In the East Coast Demerara Judicial District," and it is contended that, as the Order in Council of the 21st April, 1902, altering the Magisterial Judicial Districts calls the District the East Coast Judicial District, there is no such Court as the East Coast Demerara Judicial District and therefore there being no such Court as the one in which the claim was made, the Magistrate had no jurisdiction to try the case. To advance such an argument appears to me a waste of the Court's time.

Whether the Court be rightly or wrongly called the East Coast Demerara Judicial District seems to me perfectly immaterial. There is no shadow of doubt that the Magistrate who tried the case had the jurisdiction to do so and it is of very little moment what the claimant chooses to call his Court. If there was any necessity for an authority on the point the case of Cyrus v Coyle, 29th May, 1902, appears to me very much in point.

With regard to the reason that it was not proved the cottage levied on came in the category of goods and chattels it is difficult to see why such a reason was put forward by the appellant. The levy was made by the appellant; if the cottage was immoveable property the levy would be bad. I cannot presume that the appellant, the bailiff and the magistrate acted illegally and the cottage must be taken, until the contrary is shown, to be of such a nature that it could be taken in execution under a writ from the Magistrate's Court. Further the return of the bailiff shows that this cottage is moveable property.

The remaining reason of appeal is that the decision was obtained by fraud. From the argument it appears what is meant is, that the evidence showed that the sale of the cottage to the claimant was fraudulent. It is contended that the discrepancies in the evidence and the relationship existing between the parties show that the transaction was a fraudulent one. These are matters which the magistrate took into consideration in coming to a decision.

I have already held in Santos & Co. v Nunes, 22nd March, 1902, that the law does not allow an appeal on the ground that the decision is against the weight of the evidence. I cannot say that in this case the magistrate has overlooked some cardinal fact or taken an altogether erroneous view of the evidence, or that the verdict is such as no jury could have found as reasonable men.

The appeal must be dismissed with costs.

A. V. LUCIE SMITH, J.

THIS 12TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

SMALL, Appellant,

versus

DORNFORD, Respondent.

This is an appeal from a decision of Mr. L. E. Hawtayne, acting Stipendiary Magistrate, South Essequibo Judicial District, convicting the appellant on a charge of occupying in July last a shop in which goods were sold and failing without lawful excuse to take out a licence for the same.

The reasons for appeal (shortly stated) are (1) that the decision is erroneous in point of law, as the evidence did not establish the offence laid in the charge or that the appellant occupied a shop in which goods were sold, such evidence (if true) establishing at most that goods were not sold but supplied to the appellant's labourers for their personal use, and he was, therefore, not liable to take out a licence; and (2) that the decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence.

It appears from the evidence that the appellant occupied at Wyamoo Back, Cuyuni River, at the date mentioned in the charge, a house which was used as a store and a house for sleeping in; that certain goods, such as rice, pork, sugar and beef, were supplied therefrom to persons who came there to obtain them; that of these persons some were labourers employed by the appellant on claims held by him under the Mining Regulations; that when these labourers wanted any provisions beside the rations supplied under their contracts they obtained them from the house already mentioned and the value was deducted from their accounts for wages; that other persons supplied from this house with provisions sometimes (and perhaps always, though this is not clearly stated) gave gold for the goods supplied them; and that the appellant applied in August last for a licence to keep a shop at Wyamoo Back, but was told he could not obtain one unless he took out a licence to trade in gold, which he has not done. It is also expressly stated by the principal witness that all goods so disposed of were disposed of at a profit.

It was urged by the appellant's counsel (1) that the appellant had not sold any goods to the persons not in his employ who had obtained provisions, but had bartered them for gold (Benjamin on Sales, 3rd ed. p. 2; Harrison v Luke, 14 M. and W. 139) and that as section 20 of the Tax Ordinance, 1902, speaks of occupiers of shops in which goods are sold, or bartered, or exposed for sale as bound to take out licences, the appellant could not, by reason of such transactions, be convicted on the charge of occupying a shop in which goods were sold and failing to take out a licence for the same; and (2) that the supply of provisions to his labourers by the appellant could not be held to be a sale but must be regarded as a barter or exchange of the provisions for their work and labour on his placers, and as Regulation 78 of the Amended Mining Regulations, 1893, recognised the right of an employer to supply his labourers with goods for their personal use, and to deduct the value not exceeding $5 in any one month from their wages it could not be supposed that the Legislature intended an employer to take out a licence for so doing.

The obligation to take out a licence is imposed on occupiers of shops, &c., in rural districts, in which goods, &c., are sold, bartered or exposed for sale by the Tax Ordinance, 1902, sect. 20, and there is no exception therein made in favour of owners of placers occupying shops wherein goods are sold to labourers employed by them, although reference is in that section made to shops, &c., within 10 miles of any claims located and worked under the Mining Regulations. Regulation 78 of the Amended Mining Regulations, 1893, which was not passed by the Combined Court or recognised by it as having that effect apparently could not create such an exception, even if it purported to do so, but it is clear that the object of that Regulation is simply to provide against excessive sums being deducted from a labourer's wages in payment for goods supplied to him in addition to the stipulated rations. That regulation, therefore, in my opinion does not affect the question before the Court. The Magistrate in his reasons for decision finds (inter alia) that the appellant's labourers purchased goods from his shop, and there was, in my opinion, ample ground for his so finding, there being no evidence to show that the supply of additional provisions was regarded by either of the parties to the transaction as being or intended to be a barter or exchange of goods for labour, the transaction being in all particulars (as appears from the evidence) the same as any ordinary sale of goods at any shop, there being no obligation on the occupier to supply these goods, while the obligation of the labourers to render him their services was wholly independent of his supplying these additional provisions, and the transaction being expressly described by a witness, who had been in charge of the shop, as a sale. The fact that up to the limit of $5 00 there was a special means by which the shopkeeper could obtain payment for goods supplied in any month does not alter the character of the transaction, and I see no reason, therefore, for dissenting from the conclusion on this point at which the Magistrate has arrived. It being established that goods were sold to the appellant's labourers, the circumstance that goods were not sold to persons of any other class (even if it be taken as proved) would not be sufficient (as is clear from the decision in Bowyer v. Percy Club L. R. (1893), 2 Q. B. 154), to exempt the appellant from liability, and the evidence as to the several points in the case other than that already dealt with being sufficient to support the Magistrate's decision, that decision must be affirmed and the appeal dismissed with costs.

It is unnecessary to decide whether having regard (1) to the facts that a single licence under the Tax Ordinance, 1902, sect. 20, entitles the occupier of a shop not only to sell, but also to barter and expose for sale therein, goods and merchandise, and that the charge is in substance one of keeping a shop without taking out a licence as required by that section, and (2) to the enactments sect. 97 (2) of the Summary Conviction Offences (Procedure) Ordinance, 1893, and sect. 2 of Ord. 15 of 1893, the first of the two objections raised by counsel can be sustained, in the absence of any evidence that the appellant was deceived or misled by the alleged variance between the complaint and the evidence adduced in support of it.

HENRY A. BOVELL, C.J.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 8TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

GOMES

versus

Executors of GOMES.

The defendants, in this matter, have been summoned under section 184 of the Amended Manner of Proceeding Ordinance, 1855, to render accounts in terms of the order of the Full Court dated 27th March, 1902. The action was commenced before the coming into force of the Rules of Court, 1900, and the old Rules of Procedure, therefore, apply. Ordinance No. 17 of 1901 repealed both the Amended Manner of Proceeding Ordinance, 1855, and Ordinance No. 2 of 1853 without making any provision as to the procedure to be adopted in actions under the old rules. By order 1, rule 2, of the Rules of Court, 1900, it is provided that any proceeding pending before the Supreme Court, on the 1st October, 1901, shall be regulated by the practice then in force. These rules were approved by the Governor and Court of Policy on the 18th January, 1901. Ordinance 17 of 1901 was passed in September, 1901. It is provided that both the Rules of Court 1900, and Ordinance 17 of 1901 should come into force on the 1st October, 1901, and from this fact it might possibly be held that it should be presumed that the repeal of the Amended Manner of Proceeding and of Ordinance 2 of 1863 was not intended to apply to proceedings commenced before the 1st of October, 1901, but that those Ordinances were kept alive for the purposes of such proceedings under Order 1 Rule 2 of the Rules of Court, 1900. There is so much doubt in the matter that I do not feel that I am justified in proceeding under section 184 of the Amended Manner of Proceeding to apprehend and lodge the defendants in gaol even if they had rendered no accounts.

It appears, however, that the defendants have rendered some sort of accounts, but it is contended that these accounts are not such as are required by Order XXXI, r. 3, of the Rules of Court, 1893. By Order XLI, r. 1, of the same Rules of Court, it is provided that non-compliance with the Rules shall not render any proceeding void unless the Court sees good reason in any case for so doing, but such proceeding may be set aside . . . or dealt with in such manner and upon such terms as the Court may think fit. The Court in this case is the full Court. I refer the matter to the Full Court to be dealt with in such manner as the Court may think fit.

IN INSOLVENCY (NO. 19 OF 1897.)

REVIEW OF TAXATION.

THIS 12TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

Re A. F. BLACK

Ex parte THE BRITISH GUIANA BANK.

This is an appeal by the opposor, G. H. Richter, against the disallowance by the Taxing Officer, in his Bill of Costs of the item:—

"To attendance in Court matter mentioned and applicants' abandoned motion on 11th October, 1902, $15 00."

The grounds and reasons of appeal are that it was an appearance on the hearing of an application. I am of opinion that the Taxing Officer was right in disallowing this item. It appears to me that the note to Schedule B applies as well to applications as to actions, and that being so, the appellant was not entitled to a fee for a second appearance, unless the time occupied in the Court in the disposal of the application exceeded five hours.

The mover through his Solicitor also appeals against the allowance of the following items:—

Advising on evidence	... $10 00
Drawing Notice intimating affidavit	... 2 00
Making copy notice to annex to affidavit	... 0 25

As to the first objection, I am of opinion that the fee mentioned in the tariff is not limited to matters in which there may be oral evidence. Affidavits are just as much evidence as oral testimony and as there were affidavits in this case which had to be considered, I am of opinion that the Taxing Officer rightly exercised his discretion by allowing the item.

As to the second item, I do not think any notice intimating affidavit was absolutely required and I therefore disallow this amount of $2 00.

As to the third item, I think it was necessary and I therefore allow the same. No costs.

611. 17th November, 1902.

WITH reference to Government Notices of the 3rd July, and 21st August last, His Excellency the Governor directs the publication of the following telegram which has been received from the Secretary of State for the Colonies:—

"It is hereby notified that His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs has received a despatch dated the 11th July last, from His Majesty's Minister at Caracas, transmitting a decree of the Venezuelan Government which appeared in the "Official Gazette" of the 28th June, 1902, and was formally communicated to him on the following day. This decree prohibited the navigation of the waters of the Orinoco, and declared the line of coasts which embraces its mouths blockaded and the ports of Guiria and Cano Colorado closed to commerce and navigation. Port of La Vella de Coro was also declared to be blockaded. His Majesty's Minister subsequently reported that by a later decree which appeared in the "Official Gazette" of 19th July, Port of Carupano was included in the above blockade. This decree was, however, revoked by a third decree, dated 23rd August. His Majesty's Government have ascertained from the report of His Majesty's Minister at Caracas, from those of a Senior Naval Officer of His Majesty in those waters, and from other trustworthy sources, that no effective blockade of the stretch of Coast and Ports comprised in the decree of 28th June, and 19th July, is or has ever been maintained. It is therefore further notified that the blockade so declared is held by His Majesty's Government to be and to have been ab initio null and of no effect."

612. 17th November, 1902.

NOTICE is hereby given that copies of a leaflet containing revised regulations for the holding in the Colonies of the Examinations of the University of London for Matriculation and the Degrees of B.D., B.A., and LL.B., have been received from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and may be seen on application at the Office of the Inspector of Schools.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 14TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

W. E. LEWIS,

Clerk

PHILIP SAUNDERS.

This is an action on a promissory note for the sum of $146 79. At the first hearing defendant admitted owing $46 79 and for that sum judgment was given for the plaintiff, leave to defend being granted as to the residue of plaintiff's claim.

At the hearing defendant swore that when the note which he admitted making was discounted he only got $53 92 of the proceeds and no more, and that the plaintiff kept the balance for his own use.

Plaintiff, on the other hand, says "that the sum of $100, the difference between the said promissory note and the sum admitted to have been received by the defendant was paid to him by the defendant on account of a pre-existing liability to him by the defendant and one E.L. Venture."

From the evidence it appears that defendant had signed two promissory notes jointly and severally with one Venture and amounting in the aggregate to $425 in favour of plaintiff. It was not proved that defendant himself benefited in any way by these notes, and although plaintiff expresses his belief that defendant signed them as principal and not as surety yet he was unable to swear positively that was the case. Defendant declares he did not benefit in any way by the notes and that he only signed them as surety. As a matter of fact, he says, he only recollects signing one of the notes, that for $250, but the evidence tends to establish the fact that he also signed a note for $175.

Plaintiff, in his evidence, stated that nothing was paid on account of these notes, but a small memorandum book kept by himself and produced by him towards the close of the hearing shows that at least $120 was paid on account, most probably by Venture, defendant admitting that he made no such payments.

The memorandum book also shows that the two notes signed by defendant were settled by a new note for the sum of $425 made on the 18th April, 1900, payable in three months. To this new note defendant was not a party but it was signed by Venture and one Collier. This note subsequently falling due, was not met and plaintiff sued Venture and Collier on the same and obtained judgment against them. Now it is apparent that $130 at least having been paid on the two notes to which defendant was a party the balance due on them would only amount to $305. That being so it is not shown why the new note in settlement should be for the full amount of those two notes, viz. $425. But whatever the explanation of this may be, and it is only important, as showing there was some consideration for the making of a new note in settlement of two others aggregating a smaller sum, it seems clear to me that the new note for $425 having been taken in settlement of the two notes signed by defendant, the latter was released from all legal liability to plaintiff.

Plaintiff alleges that defendant voluntarily offered to pay $100 on the notes signed by him, knowing as he did that neither those notes nor that taken in settlement of them had ever been paid, and he contended that a voluntarily promise of this kind was a good consideration for the note now sued on.

Defendant on the other hand swears he made no such promise as that alleged by plaintiff. He says that wanting $50, he went to plaintiff and the latter explained that the Bank would not discount a note for a sum less than $100. Subsequently it was agreed that a note should be made for $150, of which he (defendant) was to receive $50, and the plaintiff was to take the remainder, not in payment or settlement of any existing obligation due to him by defendant, but for his own accommodation, and that he (defendant) was to pay the necessary charge for discounting the note.

I am of opinion that at the time defendant made this note he was not indebted to the plaintiff in any sum whatever, and it is not established to my satisfaction that he either made any such promise as that alleged by plaintiff, or that even if he did, such promise carried with it such a legal liability as would enable plaintiff to enforce the performance of the same as he seeks to do in this action.

There must be judgment in favour of the defendant for the residue claimed and for which leave was given him to defend.

As to costs, defendant did undoubtedly fail when it came to maturity to pay the actual sum due by him on the note, and plaintiff had in consequence of such failure to pay the whole himself. That being so I direct that each party shall bear his own costs.

M. F. da SILVA,

versus

JOHN LOPES and FRANCIS GONSALVES.

In this matter plaintiff sought to recover by summary citation from the defendants, jointly and severally, the sum of $248 77 for board and lodging of defendant's servants, for boat hire, &c.

The defendant Gonsalves having failed to appear, judgment was given against him on 23rd March, 1901. On 5th October, 1901, judgment was given against the defendant Lopes for the sum of $57 62, admitted to be due by him, and he was granted leave to defend the action in respect of the sum of $191 45. Failing to file his defence in time, judgment was given against him for that amount on 5th September, 1902. This last judgment was subsequently set aside on the application of defendant, and he was allowed further time (7 days) to file his answer.

On the 6th of the present month the matter came on for final hearing.

In his affidavit of defence, Lopes denied that he was indebted to the plaintiff in the sum sued for, or in any sum of money whatever, except on the first item of the account less $10.

From the evidence adduced in this case, it would appear that the defendants, Lopes and Gonsalves, were jointly interested in a gold expedition. There appears to have been an agreement of partnership between them, but this agreement, which was last in the possession of the defendant Lopes, cannot be found, or at any rate is not forthcoming. It is not denied that plaintiff did supply the goods, boats, &c., mentioned in his statement of claim, and the correctness of his account is not disputed.

Plaintiff alleges that the despatch of the first boat was ordered by first defendant by telegram, and that is not denied. It seems that this authorization was necessary as plaintiff refused to give Gonsalves credit. The second boat plaintiff swears he supplied, relying on verbal instructions given to him by Lopes, at the steamer stelling, Georgetown. This is denied by Lopes. The third boat was despatched according to instructions received verbally from Mr. Lopes, Senior, who acted as attorney for his son, while the latter was absent in Madeira. Lopes, Senior, stated he could not remember giving any such instructions. It is clear from the evidence that the three boats were actually despatched by plaintiff, and there is no dispute whatever that he did supply the other items charged for in his account. There is no evidence that the second and third boats were ordered by any one but defendant Lopes and his attorney. Plaintiff has sworn that he would not give credit to Gonsalves and that is established by the fact that Lopes had to telegraph orders for the first boat before plaintiff would despatch it. It is not probable that plaintiff would afterward despatch the second and third boat on Gonsalves's orders; nor is it suggested by Lopes, either in his evidence or otherwise, that any such instructions were given. The only way to account for the despatch of these boats would, therefore, seem to be—

- a. That they were despatched by plaintiff without any instructions whatever.
- b. Or that they were despatched as alleged by plaintiff according to instructions received from Lopes and, during his absence from the colony, his father.

I may say that neither the evidence of the plaintiff nor that of Lopes and his father impressed me much in their favour. The latter's memory appeared to be unusually defective as to material points which might possibly tell against him, and his son, the defendant, appears to have inherited to some extent this peculiarity.

In a case of this nature where the evidence is very conflicting, one can only consider the question of probabilities. Is the story of plaintiff or defendant the most probable, and looked at in that way, it seems to me that plaintiff's account of the transactions is the more likely of the two. He did undoubtedly despatch the boats and supplied the other items of the account and from what I saw of him in the witness box, he is not the sort of man to do so without instructions. Those instructions, I am of opinion, from the evidence as a whole, were given by the defendant Lopes, and his attorney. There will be judgment for plaintiff with costs.

It is to be observed that at the hearing reference was made to certain documents, material to this case, which plaintiff said had been in the possession of the solicitor and counsel at first consulted by him. They appear last to have been in the hands of counsel, but cannot now be found. Counsel and solicitor when engaged in a case are bound to take the utmost care of their clients' papers as the loss of them might possibly give rise to much trouble and pecuniary or other loss.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 14TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

A. REGO, Appellant

versus

JOS. BOBB, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of Mr. W. C. Harragin, Stipendiary Magistrate of the East Coast Demerara Judicial District, setting aside a levy made at the instance of A. Rego, of Plaisance, judgment creditor, against the goods of Whittaker, judgment debtor. The goods levied upon consisting of a board and shingle cottage and several articles of furniture were claimed by Jos. Bobb, the respondent in this appeal.

In claiming the property Bobb declared that the cottage belonged to him, his mother and sisters, as forming part of his deceased father's estate; that about 3 or 4 years ago he bought out the interests of his mother and sisters for $50 "solid cash" paid to his mother, and that he had the cottage transferred in the village books to his own name. As to the furniture Bobb states that he purchased this also from his mother and sisters.

From the evidence adduced before the magistrate it would appear that the cottage, the subject of the dispute formed no part of Bobb's father's estate, but was erected after his death. There is no evidence whatever to show by whom the cottage was built or with what funds.

Respondent's mother at the time of the sale of the cottage was married to Whittaker, the judgment debtor, and the cottage then stood in her name in the Village Books. After the alleged sale it appears to have been transferred to respondent in the usual way. Assuming that Mrs. Whittaker, had only a partial interest in the cottage, it is clear that she could not dispose of that interest except with the consent and as agent of the husband. (P. France v M. de Cambra, 1st March, 1902). The sale, therefore, of her interest was not legal, and would be of no effect as against the creditors of the husband.

Respondent says that his mother sold the cottage on her own behalf and on behalf of her children. The receipt for the purchase money shows a sale by Mary Whittaker alone, no mention being made of children.

Taking the evidence regarding this sale as a whole I am of opinion that there were no reasonable grounds for concluding this cottage was the property of the plaintiff in the Court below. Mrs. Whittaker had no legal power to sell; the property formed no part of her first husband's estate. It was registered in her name only in the Village Books both before and after her marriage to Whittaker. The receipt given by her points to a sale by her alone. She and her husband continued to reside in the house without payment of rent after the alleged sale and up to the time of the levy; and finally the evidence as to the payment of the purchase money is so conflicting as to render it extremely improbable when the other circumstances are considered that any sale was made.

The evidence as to the purchase of the furniture by the respondent is also very doubtful and contradictory. It is alleged that Mrs. Whittaker and some of her children sold the furniture to respondent. The receipt for the furniture is not signed by Mrs. Whittaker, and even if it were, it is clear she had no legal status to sell any furniture in which she had an interest without her husband's consent and as his agent. None of the children who are said to have been parties to the sale of the cottage and furniture, have been called by claimant in the Court below to give evidence as to the two sales, and Whittaker, the husband of respondent's mother, swears that respondent bought the furniture claimed in a shop in Georgetown. Moreover claimant states he bought the furniture after he purchased the cottage for $9, but the receipt shows a sale three years previous to this latter transaction and is for $29. It was for the plaintiff in the Court below to show that the property levied on was his property. In my opinion he has failed to do so. The decision of the magistrate is quashed with costs.

R. A. SWAN, Actg. J.

ALEXANDER ROBINSON, Appellant.

versus

THOS. NATH. ADAMS, Respondent.

This is an appeal against the decision of the Stipendiary Magistrate of the East Coast Demerara Judicial District, ordering appellant to deliver to the respondent—plaintiff in the Court below—possession of a tenement consisting of two rooms, situate on lot 62, in the village of Plaisance, within three weeks from the date of such order.

The claim in the Court below was under section 17 of Ordinance No. 4 of 1846—but the magistrate in dealing with it appears to have followed the procedure laid down in Ordinance No. 11 of 1893, (Petty Debts Recovery Ordinance). There is, under section 17 of 1846, a certain procedure to be followed in the recovery of the possession of tenements after determination of a tenancy, and that being so, Ordinance 11 of 1893 would not apply. (See section 59 of Ordinance 10 of 1893). The action was not for specific performance of a contract as might be inferred from the procedure adopted by the Magistrate, and the wording of his judgment, but for recovery of possession by a landlord under a special Ordinance provided for the purpose.

Most of the evidence in the Court below turned on the question as to whether the cottage, possession of which was claimed, belonged to the plaintiff or defendant, and in deciding this point the fact of the tenancy appears to have been almost lost sight of.

It may possibly have been necessary to show who was owner of the cottage, for the purpose of deciding the question of tenancy but the mere fact that a sale of the cottage took place would not by itself justify the inference that the vendor remaining in possession after the sale did so remain as tenant to the vendor (Johnson v Gravesande, decided by the Chief Justice 28th June, 1902.) The Magistrate in giving his decision says:—“I consider the sale was completed as shown by the documentary evidence produced and the transfer of this house in the claimant's name in the Village Books. I order possession to be given up within three weeks from date. It is to be observed in this decision the Magistrate does not state that he found the defendant was tenant of the plaintiff in the Court below. He simply orders possession presumably of the house which he decided to be the property of the plaintiff to be given up.”

Now so far as I can gather from the proceedings there was no evidence whatever that appellant was a tenant at will or otherwise of “a tenement consisting of two rooms” as claimed in the plaint of a house standing in the name of the respondent in the Village Books. All the evidence there is as to tenancy was given by the plaintiff Adams and is as follows:—“I got possession of the house a few days after “(the sale by Robinson)” and I allowed him to remain in one of the rooms until he made arrangements to leave the land. I gave defendant notice to quit. I served the original notice on defendant in August a week's notice, he is still in possession” Defendant is a tenant at will in this room on lot 62, East ½ Plaisance.”

The claim is for possession of a tenement of two rooms: the evidence does not do more than establish, if it establish anything, that defendant was tenant of a room only and that being so he cannot be asked nor ordered to give up a house, or a tenement consisting of two rooms. The decision of the Magistrate is reversed with costs. The question of the tenancy being practically the sole issue before this Court, it is not necessary that I should express any opinion as to whether the alleged sale of the cottage really took place. I feel, however, constrained to remark that it seems a most unusual thing for a man being in need of $13 to sell a house the value of which is appraised at $144 for $26, and that the vendee should shortly afterwards sell again to a third party for $70.

If any of the things or circumstances which are made by this Ordinance presumptive evidence of guilt are found or exist in such place, or on any person therein, every such person shall be detained in custody until he can be brought, or shall give bail for his appearance before a magistrate to be dealt with according to law.

Justice of the Peace may issue warrant to search persons.

14. If any instruments or appliances of gambling are found in any place entered under this Ordinance, or upon any person found therein, or if persons are seen or heard to escape therefrom on the approach or entry of any Police or other Constable having authority under this Ordinance to enter or go to such place, or if any such Police or other Constable is unlawfully prevented from, or obstructed or delayed in entering or approaching the same or any part thereof, it shall be presumed until the contrary be proved, that the place is a common gaming house, and that the same is so kept or used by the occupier thereof.

Presumptions as to instruments or appliances of gambling.

15.—(1.) If in the case of a place entered under this Ordinance any passage, staircase, or means of access to any part thereof is unusually narrow, or steep, or otherwise difficult to pass, or any part of the premises is provided with unusual or unusually numerous means for preventing or obstructing an entry, or with unusual contrivances for enabling persons therein to see or ascertain the approach or entry of persons, or for giving the alarm, or for facilitating escape from the premises, it shall be presumed, until the contrary be proved, that the place is a common gaming house, and that the same is so kept or used by the occupier thereof.

Presumption as to construction of place.

(2) Whenever it comes to the knowledge of the Inspector of Police in charge of any county or district that any place in such county or district is fitted or provided with any of the means or contrivances mentioned in this Section, in such a way as to lead to a presumption that the place is used, or intended to be used for the purposes of a common gaming house, it shall be the duty of such Inspector to cause notice thereof to be served on the owner of such place, if he can be found, and if the owner cannot be found, then the notice may be served by being affixed to the principal outer door, or any other conspicuous part of the place.

Duty of Inspector of Police as to such place.

Effect of notice to owner of place.

16 Whenever notice as aforesaid shall have been served as aforesaid on the owner, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is proved, that the place in the said notice referred to is kept or used as a common gaming house with the permission of the owner thereof.

Demolition of place specially erected or constructed for gambling.

17. Whenever upon the trial of any offence under this Ordinance it appears to the magistrate that the place in or in respect of which the offence is alleged to have been committed, is a common gaming house, and that the same is fitted or provided with any of the means or contrivances mentioned in the last preceding Section, he may, if he thinks fit, cause the owner thereof to be summoned before him at a time and place to be mentioned in the summons, to show cause why an order should not be made against such owner for the demolition and destruction of so much of the premises as appears to have been specially erected or constructed for the purpose of facilitating the carrying on of gambling therein

In default of the owner showing cause to the contrary at the time and place mentioned in the summons or at the time and place to which such summons may be adjourned, it shall be lawful for the magistrate to order the owner of the premises, within a time to be fixed in the order, to cause to be demolished and destroyed so much thereof as appears to him to have been specially erected or constructed as aforesaid, and on proof of non-compliance with such order, the owner shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding two months and to a further penalty not exceeding ten dollars, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding seven days for every day during which such non-compliance continues.

Non-production of information.

18. Except as hereinafter mentioned, no information laid under this Ordinance shall be admitted in evidence in any civil or criminal proceeding whatever, and no witness shall be obliged or permitted to disclose the name or address of any informer under this Ordinance, or state any matter which might lead to his discovery. Moreover, if any books or documents or papers which are in evidence, or liable to inspection in any civil or criminal proceeding whatsoever, contain any entry in which any informer is named or described, or which might lead to his discovery, the Court shall cause all such passages to be concealed from view, or to be obliterated so far as may be necessary to protect the informer from discovery, but no further. But if on the trial of any offence under this Ordinance, the magistrate, after full inquiry, believes that the informer wilfully made in his information a material statement which he knew or believed to be false, or did not believe to be true, or if in any other proceeding such magistrate is of opinion that justice requires the discovery of the informer, he may require the production of the original information, and permit inquiry and require full disclosure concerning the informer.

Evidence.

19.—(1.) Whenever two or more persons shall be charged with any offence against this Ordinance, the Court may require one or more of them to give evidence as a witness or witnesses for the prosecution. Any such person who refuses to be sworn or to answer any lawful question shall be deemed guilty of grave misconduct within the meaning of section 49 of the Magistrates' Court Ordinance, 1893.

(2.) Every person so required to give evidence who shall in the opinion of the Magistrate make true and full discovery of all things as to which he is lawfully examined, shall be entitled to receive a certificate of indemnity under the hand of the magistrate, stating that he has made a true and full discovery of all things as to which he was examined, and such certificate shall be a bar to all legal proceedings against him in respect of all such things as aforesaid.

20. All offences against this Ordinance shall be dealt with ~~Mode of trial~~ under the Summary Jurisdiction Ordinances.

21. No proceedings shall be taken against any person for an ~~offence~~ Repeal. under sections 4, 5 and 6 of this Ordinance without the fiat of the Attorney General being first obtained.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 18TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

JAMAR W. BACCHUS, Single Woman, Plaintiff, and
JOSEPH ALFRED GOMES AND FRANCISCO
VIEIRA, jointly and severally, defendants.

In this action plaintiff seeks to recover from the defendants the sum of $224 44, amount alleged "to be due and payable upon the defendant's bond to the plaintiff, dated 18th December, 1901, executed before a Sworn Clerk and Notary Public of the Registrar's Office of British Guiana, conditioned for the payment to the plaintiff of any sum of money not exceeding $500, that may be ordered or adjudged to be paid by Thomas Small to the plaintiff, in an action brought by the said Thomas Small against the plaintiff, and in which action the said Thomas Small was, on the 30th day of May, 1902, ordered and adjudged by the Supreme Court of British Guiana, in the exercise of its Limited Civil Jurisdiction, to pay to the plaintiff the sum of $120, and the costs of the said action."

The claim shows that the total amount of the judgment ($120) and taxed costs ($235 71), together with two other items, fee in execution ($10) and costs of sale of Small's property ($15 40) came to $382 59.

On account of this sum Small paid "on account" $150, and the proceeds of the sale amounted to $8 15, leaving the sum of $224 still due and payable. On the day of hearing second defendant, F. Vieira, was in default, but on reading his affidavit leave to defend was given to the first defendant Gomes.

From the proceedings it appears that T. Small brought an action against the present plaintiff to recover from her 70 ozs. of gold. Before the hearing Small applied to the Court for an order on Frank Fowler, acting Commissioner of Mines, for the detention and preservation of the 70 ozs. of gold until further orders. The Court granted the order applied for on condition that the said Thomas Small entered into a recognizance in the sum of $500 with a good and sufficient surety, "as security for his being answerable to the defendant for any damages that may be sustained by her by reason of this order." A bond was entered into in accordance with this order and signed by Small, Gomes and Vieira.

The action of Small against Bacchus was dismissed, and the latter was awarded $120 on her counter-claim and costs.

Counsel for plaintiff urged that under the bond entered into by Small, Gomes and Vieira, they were all and each of them liable to plaintiff, not only for the sum of $120 awarded as damages for the detention of the gold, but also for all the costs awarded against Small in the claim and counter claim.

The defendant Gomes, on the other hand, declares that the bond was not given for the purpose of meeting costs which might be awarded against Small in his action against Bacchus, but as security for any damages that might be ordered by the Court to be paid by Small to Bacchus, by reason of the order detaining the gold. He further states that the damages have been settled by Small; that even if any money is due, plaintiff is not entitled to recover from him (Gomes) because he withdrew a levy on Small's property without the consent of defendant, and that even (para. 7 Statement of Defence) "if the said sum of $224 44 is due to the plaintiff on the bond, he being in the position of a surety for the said Thomas Small as principal debtor, the plaintiff must excuse the said Thomas Small before he can in any way be held liable."

As to the first point I am of opinion that neither the order of the judge nor the bond given in compliance with that order can, in any way, be construed so as to make the defendant liable for the costs awarded against Small in his action for the recovery of the gold. The bond was given to meet any damages that might be awarded for loss sustained by Bacchus in consequence of the order to detain the gold, and that loss was estimated by the Court to be $120, for which sum judgment was given in favour of Bacchus on her counter-claim against Small. The taxed costs on the counter claim, according to a certificate of the Registrar, tendered by Gomes, amounted to $10, and I am of opinion that $130 is the utmost extent of the liability on the bond.

As to the necessity of excusing Small before proceeding against the other signatories to the bond, Gomes and Vieira, it is to be observed that both these individuals renounced the benefit of the exception termed in law ordinis seu excussionis et divisionis, and the defendant Gomes is debarred therefore from now claiming his right to that exception. He, moreover, signed the bond as a principal debtor, and cannot be permitted in contradiction of his own deliberate act, to set up a defence as surety.

As to a levy on Small's property being withdrawn without defendant's knowledge and consent, there might be something in Mr. Gomes's argument on this point were he merely a surety as he alleges. But as stated above he signed the bond as a principal debtor, and it is in that capacity he must of necessity be regarded in this matter. Moreover the levy on Small's property—12 placer claims—was subsequently carried out, and the net result of the sale, amounted to $8 15, defendant himself, it is stated, being the purchaser.

As to the payment of the damages having been settled in full by Small, that is not the case. Small on account of the costs due by him, paid $150 to plaintiff, and obtained a receipt to that effect. In payments, on account in legal matters of this kind, it is the practice, or at any rate not unusual, to appropriate the amounts so paid to the reduction of costs, in the first instance and even had the receipt contained no words to that effect, the presumption would be, that the payment of $130 "on account" was to be first applied to the extinguishment of the costs due.

I am of opinion that defendant is liable, to plaintiff under the bond for $120, damages awarded by the Court to plaintiff for the detention of her gold and also for $10, the taxed costs of the counter-claim, which ought fairly and properly to be considered from the wording of the bond as a sum awarded as damages in consequence of such detention.

There will be judgment in favour of the plaintiff for $130 with costs.

R. A. SWAN, Actg. J.

GENERAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.

THIS 18TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL OF BRITISH GUIANA AND THE CUSTOMS ORDINANCE, 1884.

This is an application for two writs of assistance, one to be in force within the City of Georgetown and the other within the Town of New Amsterdam.

The only questions to be decided are (1) whether the Court has power to issue such writs, and (2) whether separate writs should be issued or a single writ applicable to both the places just mentioned.

In support of the Court's power to issue such writs, the Court's attention has been called by the Attorney General to the fact that a similar writ was issued by Bent, C.J., on the 16th of December, 1837, to the Supreme Court Ordinance, 1893, sections 3 (2) and 34, to the Customs Ordinance, 1884, section 181, and to the case of R. v. Watts, 1 B. and Ad. 166, in which the English law on the subject of such writs is referred to and discussed.

The writ issued by Bent, C.J., appears on the face of it to have been issued by him as "Chief Justice of British Guiana and sole Judge of Our Vice-Admiralty Court of the same," and by section 61 of the Imperial Act, 3 & 4, Will. IV., c. 59, passed to regulate the trade of the British Possessions abroad, an Act which applied to this Colony, authority to issue such writs was expressly conferred on the several Vice-Admiralty Courts in the British Possessions abroad. The issue of that writ cannot, therefore, be treated as evidence of any original authority to issue such writs being inherent in the Court, and as the Act of William IV., just referred to, and the subsequent Act 8 and 9, Vict., c. 93, which contained a similar provision, were repealed after the Legislature of this Colony (under the powers conferred by the Imperial Act, 9 and 10 Vict., c. 94), by Ordinance provided for and regulated the collection of Colonial import duties, those statutes can no longer be relied on as giving power to this Court as a Colonial Court of Admiralty to issue such writs.

The question, therefore, to be decided is whether, by the law of this Colony, authority to issue such writs is given to this Court. Section 3 (1) of the Supreme Court Ordinance, 1893, does not, in our opinion, confer such power, it not being by English law an ordinary power inherent in every Superior Court of Record, but a special power of the old Court of Exchequer, based on ancient usage recognised by statute, nor is there any other enactment which expressly gives such power to the Court. All the Customs Ordinances prior to the Customs Ordinance, 1884, enact that "under the authority of a writ of assistance granted by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Civil Justice or Court of Vice-Admiralty having jurisdiction in this Colony, (who is hereby authorised and required to grant such writ of assistance upon application made for that purpose,) entry on any building and search and seizure of goods as therein mentioned may take place, and by the same section, which in the several Customs Ordinances contains the enactment just mentioned, it is provided "and such writ of assistance when issued shall be deemed to be in force during the whole of the reign in which the same shall have been granted, &c., &c. The Customs Ordinance, 1884, repeals the previous Ordinance (No. 16 of 1854), which contains the provision just mentioned, and by section 181 (1) enacts that "all writs of assistance issued from the Supreme Court shall continue in force during the reign in which they are granted and for six months afterwards," re-enacting in substance, by section 181 (2), the provisions of the pre-existing law as to the powers of Officers of Customs armed with writs of assistance. But the pre-existing provision authorising the issue of such writs is not re-enacted, and no new provision is substituted expressly conferring on the Supreme Court the power to issue such writs. The question, therefore, to be decided is, does section 181 (1) by implication confer that power. The words in that sub-section, "issued from the Supreme Court" must have been inserted therein either with a view to conferring on the Supreme Court power to issue the writs, or else as a mere phrase descriptive of such writs. If used as a mere description, they embody an erroneous view of the law, as at the date of the Ordinance not the Supreme Court but the Chief Justice alone or the Vice-Admiralty Court (Ord. 16 of 1854, sec. 58) issued such writs, and such a misapprehension would not have the effect of making the law that which it is erroneously assumed to be (Earl of Shrewsbury v. Scott, 29 L. J. C. P. 53) but such a misapprehension of the existing law is not lightly to be attributed to the Legislature. (Dictum of Halsbury, L. C., Com. of Income Tax v. Pemsel L. R. 1891 A. C. 549: the Legislature is to be presumed to have known the law existing at the date of the Ordinance (Dictum of Lord Blackburn in Young v. Leamington, L. R. 8 Ap. Cas. 526) which law was that only the Chief Justice or the Vice-Admiralty Court was authorised to issue such writs, and the fair inference to be drawn from the mention of such writs as issued not by the Chief Justice or the Vice-Admiralty Court but by the Supreme Court coupled with the fact that by the same Ordinance the enactment authorising the Chief Justice or Vice-Admiralty Court to issue such writs is repealed appears to us to be that the words under consideration were used as indirectly and by necessary implication conferring on the Supreme Court the power to issue such writs. This conclusion is fortified by the fact that if the words in question were used merely as a descriptive phrase, then even if the assumption which on this hypothesis was contained in them, had been correct, the words would have been useless, as the sub-section would have been equally effective without them and it is a recognised canon of construction that any words used in an enactment are prima facie not to be deemed tautologous or superfluous but to be deemed intended to have some effect or be of some use (Ditcher v. Denison, 11 Moo. P. C. 325 dictum at p. 337). We think therefore that the power to issue such writs is by implication conferred on the Supreme Court.

No argument has been offered to show why separate writs should be issued for Georgetown and New Amsterdam, and as the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court extends over the whole colony the Court following the course indicated in the case R. v. Watts (ubi sup.) will issue one writ only applicable to both places.

McGOWAN, Appellant,

versus
SIMON MAY and Co., Respondents.

This is an appeal from a decision of Swan, acting J., in favour of the respondents, in an action brought by them against the appellant, to recover certain moneys alleged to be due and owing to them for goods sold and delivered to the appellant.

In his reasons for judgment dated the 9th day of July, 1902, the learned Judge (in effect) finds on the evidence that the goods already mentioned were ordered in this colony by the appellant from the respondents through their agent, and were duly received by the appellant; that the goods were ordered on the understanding that the manner of payment was to be arranged in England; that Messrs. Schmohze, Rischmann and Co. subsequently opened a credit in favour of the appellant and accepted bills drawn on them by the respondents for the price of these goods, all the shipping documents relating thereto being sent to Schmohze, Rischmann, & Co., who also demanded from the appellant letters of lien on the goods; that the respondents supplied the goods on the bills being accepted; and that the bills were dishonoured at maturity, and duly protested, and that Schmohze, Rischmann, & Co. were bankrupt. These being the facts, the learned Judge states, "The real question at issue, is whether the defendant" (the present appellant) "is liable for the price of the said goods to the plaintiffs" (the present respondents) "or to the trustee in bankruptcy of the firm of Schmohze, Rischmann, & Co., of London. Did he buy of plaintiffs, or did he buy of Schmohze, Rischmann, and Co.?"—and after quoting from Benjamin on Sales, 3rd edition, page 713, and deciding in substance, though not in explicit terms, that the appellant was liable to pay the respondents for the goods on the dishonour of the bills accepted by Schmohze, Rischmann, & Co., he proceeds to consider certain evidence of H. H. Laurence, the attorney in this colony of the official trustee in the bankruptcy, to the effect that he had abandoned the claim made on the appellant by him, on behalf of the official trustee, of which fact the appellant's legal adviser was aware, and adds: "It seems to me that this declaration alone, irrespective of the other points involved, was sufficient to justify the defendant" (the present appellant) "either in paying the plaintiffs" (the present respondents) "or coming to a settlement with them."

The grounds of appeal are (1) that the Judge erroneously received the evidence of H. H. Laurence to prove that the trustee in bankruptcy of Schmohze, Rischmann & Co., had made no claim on the defendant, (the present appellant) in respect of the goods delivered by the plaintiffs, (the present respondent) and, on that evidence, decided the action in favour of the plaintiffs; and (2) that the Judge mistook the issue, and erroneously decided the action on the assumption that the issue was, whether the defendant (now the appellant) bought the goods, the subject of the action from, and was liable to the plaintiffs, (now the respondents) or to the trustees in bankruptcy of Schmohze, Rischmann, & Co., whereas the real issue was whether the acceptances of the bills of exchange of Schmohze, Rischmann, & Co. were discharges for the goods sold and delivered by the said plaintiffs.

The reasons for judgment, in our opinion when fairly construed, show that the decision was not based on the evidence of H. H. Laurence, but on the principle of law laid down in the passage from Benjamin on Sales already referred to, the evidence of H. H. Laurence being considered and discussed as giving an additional support to the decision at which the Judge previously and on other grounds had arrived. No objection was apparently taken to the part of H. H. Laurence's evidence referred to in the reasons for judgment at the time it was admitted, and although it may have been irrelevant to the main issue to be decided it was obviously admissible as bearing on the question of costs. That evidence, therefore cannot, we think, be said to have been illegally admitted, and if the decision appealed from is sustainable on other grounds it cannot be reversed on account of the use made of that evidence by the Court.

The evidence does not, in our opinion, establish a sale of the goods by the respondents to Schmohze, Rischmann & Co., and a resale by the latter to the appellant. If this had been established the appellant's liability would (it hardly need be said) have been a liability not to the respondents but to Schmohze, Rischmann & Co. But the real question at issue in the case (as pointed out in the second ground of appeal) was not whether the goods were bought by the appellant from Schmohze, Rischmann & Co., but whether the respondents agreed to take the bills of exchange drawn by them on Schmohze, Rischmann & Co., and accepted by the latter, as an absolute payment for the goods sold and delivered by them. Such an agreement, need not in every case be express but may be implied from the facts proved but as is pointed out in the passage from Benjamin on Sales already mentioned clear evidence is required of such an agreement the rule being that prima facie the acceptance of a negotiable instrument by a vendor from a purchaser is only a conditional payment. Having read and considered the evidence we are unable to see any sufficient ground for holding that the transactions between the respondents and the appellant differed in any essential from the common case of a sale of goods to be paid for in approved bills, in which case, in the absence of a clear agreement to the contrary, the bills given are only a conditional payment. The circumstances that the bills were drawn by the respondents and were drawn on and accepted by a third party and that they did not obtain the appellant's name to them as drawer or indorser are not sufficient to show that the bills were taken in absolute payment for the goods supplied (Belshaw v Bush, 22 L. J., C. P. 24, dictum in ex parte Blackburn, 10 Ves. 204) and none of the other facts established by the somewhat meagre evidence put forward are sufficient for that purpose. The second ground for appeal therefore fails, and there being no other ground of appeal beside the two already dealt with the decision appealed from must be affirmed and the appeal dismissed with costs.

The Commissioner may, by notice in writing (whether a penalty for failing to comply with this Regulation has or has not been inflicted) require the owner, manager, or person in charge of any mine to cause an accurate plan, such as is herein prescribed, to be made within a reasonable time at the expense of the owner of the mine, on a scale of not less than two chains to one inch, or on such other scale as the plan then used in the mine is constructed on.

(4.) All additions of any kind to the underground workings of such mine made after the date of such order shall be correctly delineated upon the original plan and sections, and also upon the copy deposited at the office at the mine, at intervals of not more than two months, and such original plan and sections shall contain complete information as to all the underground workings up to the date of the abandonment of such mine.

Inspection
and safe working of mine, etc.

148. The Commissioner or Warden shall, from time to time, or when he may deem it necessary, inspect any mine or mining machinery, and may issue such orders for the safe working of such mine [or machinery] as he may deem advisable [and may order work to cease on any part of the claim;] and the owner, manager, or person in charge of such mine or machinery shall carry out such orders.

Giving of notice as to danger or defect in mine.

149. If in any respect (which is not provided against by any express provision of these Regulations,) the Commissioner or Warden finds any mine or any part thereof, or any matter, thing, or practice in or connected therewith, to be dangerous or defective, so as, in his opinion, to threaten or tend to the bodily injury of any person, he shall give notice in writing to the owner, manager, or person in charge of the mine of the particular grounds on which he is of opinion that such mine or any part thereof, or any portion of the particulars aforesaid, is dangerous or defective, and shall in such notice require such owner, manager or person in charge to remove or remedy such danger or defect. Any owner, manager or person in charge who fails forthwith to remove or remedy such danger or defect shall be guilty of a breach of these Regulations.

Investigation of complaint made by miner.

150. Where any miner working in a mine makes a complaint under these Regulations to the Commissioner or Warden, it shall be the duty of the Commissioner or Warden as soon as possible to make inquiry into the matter of such complaint, and to take such other steps as he may deem necessary to investigate the matter, and the name of the informant shall not, except with his sanction, be divulged by the Commissioner or Warden.

151. If a mining manager is shown to have been guilty of carelessness or negligence in the performance of his duties or in relation to any matter dealt with in these Regulations, his permission may be suspended for such time as the Commissioner may think fit, or may be cancelled by the Commissioner, subject to an appeal to the Governor.

Negligence of mining manager.

152. Any accident occurring in a mine shall be prima facie evidence that such accident occurred through some negligence on the part of the owner of the mine.

Presumption of negligence from accident in mine.

153. The mining manager of every mine shall, forthwith after the occurrence of any accident attended with serious injury to any person, give notice in writing thereof to the Warden and shall also forthwith, if there is a telegraph or telephone station within ten miles of the mine, report the same by telegraph or telephone message to the Commissioner.

Reporting of serious accident in mine.

154.—(1.) Every person who is guilty of a breach of any Regulation contained in this Part shall be liable, where no penalty is expressly provided, if he is the owner, mining manager, or underground manager or person in charge of or giving orders or directions relating to the carrying on of any mining operations in any mine, to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, and, if he is any other person, to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars.

Liability for breach of Regulations of Part VII.

(2.) The whole or any part of such penalty may be awarded to any person injured in consequence of such breach, and such award shall not take away any right of action such person may have under these Regulations or otherwise.

PART XI.

complaint. He shall, within the same time, serve on the party complaining, at the address contained in the statement or complaint, a copy of the answer.

(2.) There shall be endorsed on the answer an address in Georgetown or in the District, as the case may be, at which all notices may be served on the opposite party.

Filing of reply.

158. On such complaint and answer being filed, the Commissioner, or Warden may, if he thinks fit, by notice in writing, require the complainant to file a statement in reply; and in such case the reply shall be filed and a copy served on the opposite party within such time and in such manner as may be prescribed in the notice.

Place for filing documents.

159. Every person filing any document under the last three preceding Regulations shall do so in duplicate at the Office either of the Commissioner or of the Warden.

Enlarging of time for filing document.

160. The Commissioner, or Warden may on the ex parte application of either party or after such notice as he may direct, either before or after the time limited by this Part for the filing of any document or the doing of any act, enlarge the time for filing such document or doing such act.

Giving notice of hearing.

161.—(1.) The answer or reply, as the case may be, having been filed or default having been made therein, the Commissioner, or Warden, shall forthwith cause notice in writing to be served on both parties at their registered address of the day, hour, and place at which the dispute will be heard and determined.

(2.) If the hearing so appointed does not take place, a fresh notice of hearing may be served, and so on toties quoties.

Hearing.

162. At the day, hour, and place mentioned in the notice of hearing, the Commissioner, or Warden, shall proceed to hear and determine the dispute: Provided, however, that, in any case which is to be heard by a Warden, the Warden shall have power to refer the case to the Commissioner, and the Commissioner may hear and determine the same accordingly, or may in his discretion remit the case to be heard and determined by the Warden.

Proof of documents.

163. Any extract from any book, record, or other document required to be kept by any officer under these Regulations, or any copy of any document or of any entry in any book, or other record in the custody or possession, or under the control, of any officer under these Regulations, if certified to be true by the officer for the time being in charge of such book, record, or other document, may be given in evidence on the hearing of any opposition or dispute or other proceeding without calling any such officer to prove the same.

Place of sitting, etc.

164. The Commissioner or Warden shall for the purpose of hearing and determining any opposition or dispute, have power to sit in any part of the Colony and to adjourn from place to place as occasion may require.

165. The Commissioner, or Warden may, for the purpose of hearing and determining any opposition or dispute, require one of the parties to the opposition or dispute to cause such surveys and measurements to be made and taken as he may think proper; and he shall enter on the records of the proceedings the fact of his having required any such survey or measurement to be taken, and shall in his decision say on whom the expenses of the survey or measurement shall fall.

Power to require survey, etc.

166.— (1) At the time appointed for the hearing of the opposition or dispute the opposer or complainant shall proceed to state his case and then examine his witnesses, who may be cross-examined and re-examined, and tender his documentary evidence.

Procedure at hearing.

(2.) When the opposer or complainant has concluded his case, the opposite party may state his case and adduce evidence, and sum up and comment thereon.

(3.) If the opposite party adduces no evidence, the opposer or complainant shall have no right of reply.

(4.) If the opposite party adduces evidence, the opposer or complainant shall be at liberty to reply generally on the whole case.

167. After the hearing has been concluded the Commissioner or Warden shall give his decision and the reasons thereof in writing, which shall form part of the record, and shall intimate the same to the several parties as soon after the delivery of such decision as practicable.

Giving of decision.

168. The decision of the Commissioner or Warden shall be given effect to and be enforced notwithstanding any appeal, until such decision or order has been varied or set aside on appeal.

Enforcement of decision.

169. Every person shall be entitled, on application at the Office of the Commissioner or Warden, to a copy of the proceedings on payment of the prescribed fee.

Right to copy of proceeding.

170. Every person aggrieved by any such decision as aforesaid may appeal therefrom to the Supreme Court.

Appeal.

171. The Commissioner or Warden may, where it appears to him absolutely necessary to do so for the maintenance of the public peace or for the protection of the interests of the Crown or of private persons, order that all work shall cease on a claim, either generally or by any particular person or persons, and thereupon work shall be discontinued accordingly.

Power to Commissioner or Warden to order work to cease.

172. If either party to an opposition or dispute refuses or neglects to give effect to any order or decision lawfully made therein, he shall in addition to any other penalty or process to enforce such order to which he may be subject forfeit all his interest in the subject-matter of the opposition or dispute, and be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Consequence of refusal or neglect to give effect to order.

Fees.
Second
Schedule.

173. The fees specified in the [Appendix II.] to these Regulations shall be payable in proceedings before the Commissioner or Warden for the determination of oppositions and disputes, and the Commissioner or Warden may award to either of the parties to any dispute such costs not exceeding in amount the costs payable in cases within the limited jurisdiction of the Supreme Court as in his discretion he thinks fit.

Government Notice.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,

Georgetown, Demerara,

25th November, 1902.

622.

HIS Excellency the Governor directs the publication of the following despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies with reference to the future movements, during the continuance of small-pox in Barbados, of the Royal Mail Steamers leaving Southampton for the West Indies.

By Command,

A. M. ASHMORE,

Government Secretary.

I.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies to Governor Sir J. A. Swettenham, K.C.M.G.

Downing Street,

28th October, 1902.

SIR,

In confirmation of my telegram of the 21st instant, I have the honour to inform you that, in consequence of the epidemic of small-pox at Barbados, the Royal Mail Steam Packet Coy.'s steamer which left Southampton for West Indian ports on the 15th instant, and subsequent mail steamers till further notice, will tranship at Trinidad instead of at Barbados. Mails and passengers for Barbados will be dropped at that Island, and disinfected mails taken on board.

2. I enclose for your information a copy of a letter on this subject received from the General Post Office forwarding a copy of the ad interim tables of routes submitted to the Postmaster General by the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company.

3. I hope that, under the difficult circumstances of the case, every possible allowance will be made for any departures by the mail steamers from the existing times of calling at the various ports.

I have, &c.,

(Sgd.)

J. CHAMBERLAIN.

Governor Sir J. A. SWETTENHAM, K.C.M.G.

II.

Enclosure.

General Post Office, London,
22nd October, 1902.

SIR,

With reference to informal communications which have taken place between officers of the Colonial Office and this Department, I am directed by the Postmaster General to acquaint you, for the information of Mr. Secretary Chamberlain, that, in view of the outbreak of small-pox at Barbados and the declaration of quarantine by other islands in the West Indies against ships communicating with the infected island, it has been necessary to accept a proposal of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company for modifying the service by temporarily substituting Trinidad for Barbados as the port of transfer connected with the Mail Service.

The temporary arrangement, which is to come into operation in connexion with the Mails of the 15th instant now at sea, has been discussed between the officers of the two Departments referred to above, who were in complete accord as to the necessity of the step; and I am now to send, for the information of the Secretary of State, a copy of the ad interim tables of routes which have been submitted to the Postmaster General by the Company.

In view of the considerable difficulties which the Company cannot but experience in carrying on the service in the exceptional conditions now prevailing, I am to suggest that, if the Secretary of State sees no objection, he will cause the Governors of the West Indian Colonies to be requested by telegraph to endeavour to facilitate as far as possible at the various ports the operations of the Company connected with freight and passengers as well as with Mails, and so minimise the disturbance of the Service.

In particular, I am to refer to the desire of the Governor of Barbados in normal circumstances to have the Mail Packet stop at Barbados all the time fixed by the Time Table, even when arriving before Time Table time. It seems probable that, in present circumstances, there will not be sufficient object to gain by a rigid enforcement of this practice; and the Postmaster General would be glad if it could be suggested to His Excellency the Governor to release the Packet when possible before the expiration of the Time Table time.

I am, &c.,

(Sgd.) G. H. MURRAY.

The Under Secretary of State,
Colonial Office.

Executive Council Notice.

GUIANA PUBLIC BUILDINGS,

Georgetown, Demerara,

25th November, 1902.

THE following Report on the Government Savings Bank for the year 1901 is hereby published in terms of Section 3b, Sub-Section (3), of the Savings Bank Ordinance, 1889.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Clerk of the Council.

TREASURY,

GEORGETOWN, DEMERARA,

31st July, 1902.

SIR,—

I have the honour to submit the Report on the Government Savings Bank for the year 1901, with the following statements:—

I. Balance Sheet, 31st December, 1901.

II. Statement of Investments.

III. Statement of Interest Account.

IV. Analysis of Depositors and amounts at their credit on the 31st of December, 1901:—

(a.) Georgetown.

(b.) New Amsterdam.

(c.) Suddie.

(d.) Summary.

V. Amount and Classification of deposits and withdrawals.

VI. Number of accounts opened and closed from 1897 to 1901, inclusive.

VII. Number of Deposits and Withdrawals from 1896 to 1901, inclusive.

VIII. Statement of amounts at credit of indentured and unindentured immigrants, respectively

IX. Comparative Statement for fifteen years of depositors and amounts at their credit at the end of each year, in pounds sterling.

X. Table showing proportion of depositors to the population at decennial periods from 1851, and to estimated population from 1891.

XI. Average amount at credit of different classes of depositors.

XII. Statement of Unclaimed Balances paid into the Treasury, under the provisions of Ordinance No. 6 of 1889.

2. In Statement II, the face value of the investments shows an increase of £3,633 6s. 7d., whilst the cost of investments is less by $5,285 86 than it was last year. Investments in Colonial Inscribed Stock at the following rates have been sold during the year:—

Investments at 4 o/o value	...	...	$ 138,805 84
do. 3½ " "	...	...	72,000 00
do. 3 " "	...	...	66,866 62
			$ 277,672 46

Investments have been made in British Guiana 3 o/o Inscribed Stock with the approval of the Secretary of State to the face value of £66,000 ($316,800) at a cost of $294,624.

The deposits in the Treasury have been reduced in 1901 by $22,237 40, to what they were the previous year. The result of all these operations is that the total of the cost of the Bank's investments on 31st December, 1901, shows an apparent decrease of $5,285 86. In selling the higher interest-bearing of Stock, however, a profit of $16,818 16 was realised, which amount is included in the present investments, but which sum appears at the credit of a separate account called Reserve Fund Account.

The total of the face value of the 4 o/o and 3½ o/o interest-bearing investments has been reduced as compared with the previous year by £82,997 11s., 11d., whilst the total of the face value of the 3 o/o investments has been increased by £129,463 15s. 2½d.

This does not indicate any material loss of interest from investments when the premium on purchase of the higher interest-bearing rate securities is taken into account as compared with the investments made at a lower rate of interest, which were purchased below par.

As it has been decided to reduce the rate of interest payable to depositors from 3 o/o to 2·40 o/o from 1st April, 1902, the result of the interest account of the Bank at the end of 1902 should be more favourable than it was during 1901.

3. The surplus interest paid into the Treasury for Revenue purposes shows a decrease on last year of $2,725 05, and the amount of interest allowed depositors has decreased by $1,205 95. A refund of Income Tax due to the Bank amounting to about $1,000 has not been made in time to be included in this year's accounts which will when made improve the position of the Interest Account by this sum.

4. Each County taken separately shows the following results in the year's operations :—

DEMERARA.

An increase in the number of depositors of 175 has taken place, but a decrease in the amount on deposit of $4,524 63.

BERBICE.

An increase in the number of depositors of 152, and in the amount on deposit of $9,924 03.

ESSEQUEBO,

A decrease in the number of depositors of 54, and in the amount on deposit of $752 45.

5. In the whole Bank there has been an increase in the number of depositors, as well as in the total amount on deposit.

6. The classes in which differences occur are :—

Class.	Increase in Number.	Decrease in Deposits.	Increase in Deposits.
East Indians	144	...	$ 16,788 78
Chinese	7	...	34 92
Portuguese	12	$ 12,693 94	...
Creoles and Others	110	...	517 19
Making a total of	273	$ 12,693 94	$ 17,340 89

7. There has been an increase in the number of accounts opened of 392, and in the transactions during the year of 1,498 ; the number of accounts closed was also more by 348.

8. The transactions of the East Indian depositors show more satisfactory results than any others.

9. The cost of management, including Books and Stationery, during the year, is estimated at $6,880, against which there is the profit of the Bank in Surplus Interest of $5,415 19, and the further credit of $1,000 mentioned in paragraph 3.

10. The Treasury Staff employed in the Government Savings Banks have been assiduous in the performance of their duties during the past year.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

C. B. HAMILTON,

Receiver General.

The Honourable

The Government Secretary.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH
GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 19TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

Assignee of M. DESOUSA

versus

Executor of M. J. DESOUSA, Deceased.

These are proceedings by way of interpleader to try whether the sum of $850 standing to the credit of the estate of M. J. de Souza, deceased, in the Government Savings Bank, is the property of the assignee of M. de Souza, an insolvent, as against the executor of M. J. de Souza, deceased.

The evidence proves that this $850 was part of the money received by the insolvent from the Palatine Insurance Company, in respect of damage and loss occasioned to the insolvent by a fire which occurred in his business premises. In the issue between the parties it is alleged on behalf of the defendant that the insolvent's wife was possessed of the sum of $850 as appears by the ante-nuptial contract between her and her husband, the insolvent; that the insolvent borrowed that sum and repaid it after her death by paying it into the Government Savings Bank to the credit of her estate. The plaintiff denies the making of the ante-nuptial contract, and also the ownership of the wife of $850 and he further states that even if those facts were true the payment is void as a fraudulent preference under the Insolvency Ordinance; on these statements the defendant joins issue.

Objection was taken at the hearing to the admission of evidence tending to shew that M. de Souza was insolvent at the time he paid in the $850 to the Savings Bank to the credit of his deceased wife's estate and that such payment was made with a view to prefer the said estate. It was argued that in dealing with the issue the Court must be guided by the rules of Common law and any proceedings to have the payment declared void as a fraudulent preference should be taken in the Insolvency Court. This evidence however goes to prove one of the issues settled between the parties and is, I think, on that ground alone admissible. The object of interpleaders is to avoid a multiplicity of actions or proceedings and great latitude is allowed in dealing with them. The Court has to say what are the real rights as between the parties even although the rights of one of them may be purely equitable rights or under the Insolvency or any other Ordinance (Nias v Duncan, 3 B. and Ald 225, Duncan v Cashion, 10 C. P. 645; Englebach v Niscon, 10 C. P. 645 and the cases therein referred to.) It appears to me that such evidence must be admitted to enable the Court to come to a decision as to which of the parties has the right to this money, more especially as it is one of the issues raised in the interpleader.

The statements of the insolvent made at his public examination were sought to be put in. On consideration, I do not think such statements can be made evidence in these proceedings, I therefore exclude them.

The ante-nuptial contract is alleged to have been made on the 6th May, 1891. The two attesting witnesses have been called on behalf of defendant to prove that it was made on the day it bears date. These two witnesses agree in testifying that the contract was made on the date it bears in a downstairs room in a house in Main Street, but in nearly every other particular they are completely at variance. The witness Applewhaite says that he took the instructions for drawing the document from de Souza at da Costa's shop a few days before it was signed; that de Souza then gave him a list of the furniture belonging to his intended wife and said he wanted to give her $1,000, but he had some expenses, so only $850 was to be written in the contract; that everything was written in the contract including the inventories before he brought it to the house in Main Street, and only the signatures were written there; that no money passed; that he saw a few notes on the table but he did not think they had anything to do with the $850 in the contract, and that the signatures were made with a self-inking pen the witness brought. Collymore, the other witness, states that the inventories were written in the room the day the contract was signed; that another Portuguese man who was there gave the wife the $850 in notes and silver, and Applewhaite was then told to write the $850 in the inventory; that de Souza called out the articles of furniture belonging to the wife which were then written down by Applewhaite; and that de Souza then called out his property which was also written down by Applewhaite; and that Applewhaite brought a pen and a small bottle of ink. The occurrence is alleged to have happened some considerable time ago, and it is very probable the witnesses would forget what happened. But these witnesses have a distinct recollection of what occurred, they do not in any way suggest that they have forgotten. The contract bears a stamp which Collymore at first said he put on and cancelled the day it was deposited in the Registrar's Office, on 31st December, 1901. After being shown the stamp he denies he cancelled it. It bears the initials of the insolvent and of his wife with the date 6.5.91. De Souza's wife died in September, 1901. It is admitted the stamp was affixed to the contract in December, 1901. The witness Collymore says de Souza put his own initials but cannot say who put his wife's. It is clear that the initials of the wife are a forgery, and the date is false. The contract although alleged to have been made in 1891 was not deposited until 31st December, 1901, sometime after the wife's death, this was done evidently to try and make the wife's claim a good one under the Insolvency Law 1900, (sec 37 (6)). Witnesses, Mr. Macdonald, of the Argosy, and Mr. McCall, of Baldwin & Co., who have been connected for a very considerable time with the paper trade, were called on behalf of the plaintiff. They are both of opinion that the paper on which the contract is written cannot be ten years old or anything like that age on account of its tone; that it is a common paper which could never keep its tone for so long a time. Of course this is merely a matter of opinion and too much weight cannot be attached to this evidence. But taking the whole of the evidence I must say that it casts such doubt on the contract that I am not prepared to say it has been proved. It is contended on behalf of the defendant that the statement in the wife's will which was executed the day she died, that she was married by ante-nuptial contract is strong corroboration of the fact that there was such a contract. The haste with which the will was made very shortly before the wife's death detracts to my mind from the weight of such a declaration.

It is shown that Mrs. de Souza was a servant of Mr. D'Araujo, and her savings were deposited by D'Araujo, in the Savings Bank, in February and August, 1891, amounting to $85. I think the extract from the Savings Bank's book put in evidence is sufficiently connected with Mrs. de Souza. Applewhaite's evidence shows she is called sometimes Joaquin, sometimes Rodrigues. She lived at 104, North Cumingsburg, and afterwards became de Souza. The account is in the name of Maria Joaquina Rodrigues, lot 104, Carmichael Street, North Cumingsburg, afterwards J. M. de Souza. It seems peculiar why the money in the Savings Bank to the wife's credit when the contract was made was not put in the contract if the contract was made in 1891.

Assuming for the present the genuineness of the ante-nuptial contract, I have no doubt on the evidence that the wife never owned this $850, nor was it ever paid over to her. At the most there was a binding promise by the husband to pay the money to his wife. (Frankland v Frankland, 29th March, 1901, Louw's trustees v Louw, 4 Juta 420). He never paid it to her in her life time, but after her death he paid it to the Savings Bank to the credit of her estate, to be at his own disposal as executor. When he made this payment he was in insolvent circumstances. He never even made an entry in his books crediting his wife with this sum, although, it is alleged, he used it in his business.

No argument was offered to the Court as to whether the sixth section of the Placat of the Emperor Charles V dated 4th October, 1540, is still in force in this colony. After a careful consideration I think it is repealed by the Insolvency Ordinance, 1900. That Ordinance appears to me to be, as stated in Thurburn v Steward, 7 Moo. P. C. C., N. S., 386, such a complete and exhaustive code of the existing law applicable to cases of Bankruptcy as to sweep away the sixth Section of the Placat.

Taking it that the insolvent owed his wife this $850, for this debt, if it had not been paid, the wife could not have claimed as a creditor of his estate, as the provisions of section 37, (6) of the Insolvency Ordinance, 1900, were not complied with. The transaction cannot be held to be a contract made in consideration of marriage for the future settlement on the settlor's wife of any money or property where-in he had not at the time of the marriage any estate or interest, &c., within the meaning of Sec. 43 (2) of the Insolvency Ordinance, 1900, if the English decisions on the section in similar words in the English Bankruptcy Act, are to be followed. (See ex parte Bishop, In re Tounies, L.B., 8 Chan, App, 718, followed in In re Knight, ex parte Cooper, 2 Mor, 223.

The transaction is simply one of debtor and creditor. The insolvent owed his wife $850, on a binding promise to pay her that sum in consideration of marriage. When he paid this money he was insolvent as is shown by the evidence. He was unable to meet his acceptances. Now what was the dominant view of the insolvent in making this payment? On behalf of the defendant it is urged that the insolvent was in the position of a trustee, and his repaying the trust fund would not be a fraudulent preference. The case of in re Lake ex parte Dyer (1901), 1 K.B. 710, was referred to. I do not consider that the husband was a trustee, no trust fund was entrusted to him and he had committed no breach of trust. The wife was his creditor simply, and a creditor who could not prove in insolvency. As stated by Vaughan Williams L.J., in in re Lake, ex parte Dyer, if a man on the eve of bankruptcy makes a payment to a particular creditor, the presumption immediately arises that he makes that payment with the dominant view of giving a preference to that creditor over his other creditors. This is exactly the position in this case. From the evidence I consider that the deposit of the antenuptial contract and the payment to the wife's estate was done by the insolvent in contemplation of insolvency, and for the purpose of giving his wife a preference she did not by law possess.

On the whole case I think the $850 is the property of the assignees. It was proved the money was the insolvent's, and that he paid it in to the credit of his wife's estate. The onus of proof was thereupon shifted, and it lay on the executor to show that the wife's estate was entitled to it. There is so much suspicion attached to the ante-nuptial contract that I am not prepared to hold that it was made before the marriage of the insolvent and his wife. Even if it was so made I hold that the payment was a fraudulent preference.

There will be judgment for the plaintiff with costs. The amount deposited in the Registry of Court to be paid over to the plaintiff.

A. V. LUCIE SMITH, J.

versus

CAMACHO.

The plaintiff, by this action, claims from the defendant $200 64 as salary as manager of defendant's shop in Conawarook, at the rate of $30 per month. The defendant admits the service but alleges the salary was at the rate of $20 per month not $30, and that $110 64 is due to the plaintiff. The defendant, by the way of counter-claim, claims from the plaintiff $877 15, being the value of 53 ozs. of gold, which he alleges the plaintiff has wrongfully converted.

It appears that the plaintiff used to be employed at the shop as an assistant at $15 per month. On the manager leaving the plaintiff alleges that the defendant employed him as manager and agreed to pay him $30 per month. The defendant, on the other hand, states that he got rid of his former manager because the business was not paying and he told the defendant he could be manager at $20 per month, and if he wiped off the debt he would increase his salary. There are no witnesses, besides the parties themselves on this point on either side, and I can only say that the plaintiff has not satisfied me that the defendant agreed to pay $30 per month. There will be judgment for plaintiff for $110 64, the amount admitted to be due with costs.

As regards the counter-claim the defendant admits that he had 51 ozs. 17 dwts. 7 grs., belonging to the defendant, but that it was lost by accident. His story is that he gave the gold to his man Thompson to carry; that Thompson carried the small canister containing the gold in his hand, and his prospecting bag on his head, that he, the defendant, went in front clearing the road, that Thompson slipped and fell on the side of a hill, and the gold canister fell out of his hand and jumped into the Creek; that search was made but owing to the depth and current of the creek, the canister was not recovered. He is corroborated by Thompson. Of course it would be extremely difficult to disprove such a story. It is shown that the manner in which the gold was carried is not the usual way to carry gold and certain contradictions in the evidence are pointed out. It is also shown that there is a clear path the other side of the river which Jack took when taking the plaintiff's canister. It seems peculiar that plaintiff should have kept his own side of the river and used a path which was seldom used, and which required his walking in front to clear. There was a boat at his own landing to put him across; using the path he did he had to trust to someone being at Flanagan's landing to come and fetch him across. I am not, however, prepared to say the plaintiff's story is untrue, and I must dismiss the counter-claim, but I do not allow costs to the plaintiff as it appears to me, it was his acts that caused such a suspicion as to lead the defendant to believe that he was justified bringing the counter-claim.

GENERAL JURISDICTION.

THIS 21ST DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

PAYNE AND WILLIAMS, Plaintiffs
versus
SPROSTONS, LIMITED, Defendants.

This is an ex parte application by the defendants for an order under Order 42, Rule 5 of the Rules of Court, 1900, calling on the plaintiffs, and on John William Tafares, George R. Harrison and James Wilson, to appear at a time to be fixed by the order and to state the nature and particulars of their respective claims to the sum sued for in the action, and to maintain or relinquish them and to abide by such order as may be made, and that in the meantime all further proceedings in the action be stayed.

The grounds of this application (shortly stated) are that the defendants through their agent, purchased for about $5,700 certain raw gold, from one C. J. Yearwood, and paid to him on account of the purchase money about $700, giving the plaintiffs at his request two orders on one of their agents at Arakaka for the residue; that $100 was subsequently paid on account of those orders, and two new orders on the defendants for $2,500 each given in place of them, those orders being still unpaid and the abovementioned action having been brought to recover the part of the purchase money which they represent; that before the orders last given were presented for payment J. W. Tafares gave the defendants notice that the gold already mentioned had been unlawfully taken by the plaintiffs from lands in his lawful possession and that he intended to institute legal proceedings in respect thereof; that G. R. Harrison also claims payment of the sum of $5,000 on the ground that the gold was unlawfully taken from lands in his lawful possession; and that on similar grounds, J. Wilson has commenced an action against the applicants, claiming from them the gold or its value. The applicants state that they have not any interest in the sum claimed in the present action and do not collude with any of the persons on whom they desire the order should be made, and that they are willing to pay that sum into the Registry of Court or otherwise dispose of it as the Court may order.

On the facts before the Court the subject matter in dispute within the meaning of Order XLII, R. 2 (a) is we think not the unpaid portion of the price of the gold purchased by the defendants and retained by them, but the gold so purchased or at any rate the full value thereof, whatever that may be. The applicants do not show by affidavit or otherwise that they claim no interest in this subject matter, on the contrary, it is a fair inference from the facts before the Court that some interest therein is claimed. Obviously (as was pointed out in Murietta Co. v. S. American Co., Ltd., 62 L. J., Q. B. 396), they have indirectly a substantial interest as the success of any one of the claimants, other than the plaintiffs in this action, would increase their existing liability. The Court is therefore not satisfied that the applicants are entitled to obtain the order, which they seek. As there is also a question, as to the possible right of any successful claimant to recover the gold nugget in specie, a point which cannot be wholly overlooked, and the determination of any interpleader proceedings as to the moneys now remaining in the applicants hands would not necessarily put an end to any action already commenced or to be commenced against the applicants by any of the claimants of the gold, and hence there is no certainty that the avoidance of a multiplicity of suits (which is the object of interpleader proceedings), would be attained by granting this application, and as it is conceivable that issues may be raised between the plaintiffs, who appear not to be the vendors of the gold but the holders of orders on the defendants, and the defendants in this action, which could not be raised in proceedings between the plaintiffs and the other claimants, it is open to doubt whether even apart from the reason just given, it would be a proper exercise of the discretion, vested in the Court, under Order XLII (Gerhard v. Montague, 38 W. R. 76), to make the order applied for.

The application is therefore refused. It is unnecessary under the circumstances to consider what may be the effect on this application either of the applicants having (as stated by Counsel) obtained an indemnity, which presumably was given by some one interested in the dispute as to the ownership of the gold, or of the fact that this application has been so long delayed.

REGULATIONS UNDER THE RIVER NAVIGATION ORDINANCE, 1891, FOR BOAT TRAFFIC ON THE DEMERARA RIVER.

1. These Regulations may be cited for all purposes as the River Demerara Boat Regulations, 1902.

2. In these Regulations unless the context otherwise requires "The River" means the River Demerara below No. 2 Island.

"The Officer" means the person appointed under the River Navigation Ordinance, 1891, to have charge of the Navigation of the river.

"Vessel" means any kind of vessel used for navigation, other than a boat.

"Boat" includes any punt, bateau, ballahoo, or other description of vessel used for navigation, not having a covered deck, not being a boat belonging to any vessel trading with or visiting the Colony or used only for purposes of pleasure, and does not include buckshells, corials or woodskins.

3. It shall not be lawful for any boat to ply on the river unless it has been inspected, and the person in charge of any boat, which has not been so inspected, found plying for hire or carrying cargo on the river shall be guilty of a breach of these Regulations.

4. No licence under the Annual Tax Ordinance shall be issued for any boat plying on the river until after production to the Commissary of Taxation of a certificate from the officer that such boat has been duly inspected and passed on inspection by the officer during the twelve months immediately preceding the date of the application for such licence.

5. (1.) If on such inspection the officer is satisfied that a boat is in good order and fit for use on the river, he shall issue to the owner or person in charge a certificate to that effect in the Form No. 1. in Schedule I. Such certificates shall be numbered consecutively according to date of issue and a new series shall be commenced with the first certificate issued after the beginning of each financial year.

(2.) Such certificate shall continue in force during the financial year in which it is issued and no longer: Provided always that such certificate may be suspended or cancelled at any time by the officer by notice in writing to the owner or person in charge of the boat to which such certificate refers.

(3.) The number of the certificate, and the number of persons the boat (if a passenger boat) is licensed to carry, shall be legibly painted in black letters not less than three inches high on a white ground or white on a black ground on the inside starboard bow of the boat in respect of which the certificate has been issued.

6. (1.) If, on any such inspection a boat is found to be unsafe or unfit for use, the officer shall, within twenty four hours after such inspection, give to the owner or person in charge of such boat a statement in writing of the particular defects which render such boat unsafe or unfit for use in the Form No. 2 in Schedule I, and shall, at the same time, require that the defects specified in such statement be made good before the boat plies on the river.

(2.) If after receipt of such statement and requisition by the owner or person in charge such boat plies on the river without the said defects having been made good the owner or person in charge of such boat shall be guilty of a breach of these Regulations.

7. Every boat carrying freight or ballast or passengers shall be marked with a load line outside, on each side amidships, such line to be four feet in length and one inch wide, and to be painted white on a black ground or black on a white ground. The load line shall be placed so as to allow three and one-half inches of freeboard to each foot depth of boat measured from flooring to gunwale amidships.

8. Any person in charge of a boat on the River which is so loaded as to immerse any portion of the load line shall be guilty of a breach of these Regulations

9. No more than three vessels or boats shall be made fast or secured abreast to any vessel either alongside any stelling or moored or anchored in the river, and if more than three are so made fast or secured the person in charge of each vessel or boat beyond the first three so made fast or secured shall be guilty of a breach of these Regulations.

10. The person in charge of any vessel or boat not under way shall not allow any steering oar or sweep to project beyond such vessel or boat.

11. (1.) Passenger boats licensed under Ordinance No. 4 of 1855 plying for hire alongside any vessel with passengers shall until called lie not less than thirty feet away from such vessel and ahead of the accommodation ladder or gangway.

(2.) Such boats when called shall go to such ladder or gangway at such time and in such order as the River Officer, an Officer of the vessel, Customs Officer, or Police Officer may direct. The said Officers shall for the purpose of giving such directions take precedence in the order named.

(3.) Only one such boat at a time shall go alongside the accommodation ladder or gangway.

(4.) No boat taking passengers to any vessel shall go alongside while another boat is at the ladder or gangway, and if more than one such boat is going to the ladder or gangway they shall go to it in such order as may be directed by any of the persons last mentioned.

12. Every boat (with the exception of passenger boats passed by the Harbour Master under Ordinance 4 of 1855) carrying passengers on the river shall have a large P, nine inches in length, painted on both bows on the outside. No such boat shall carry more persons (crew included) than the number specified in the certificate.

13. The Officer shall keep a Register of all certificates issued under these Regulations.

14. Every person who commits a breach of or fails to comply with any of these Regulations, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars.

15. The fees set forth in Schedule II to these Regulations shall be payable to the Officer in respect of the several matters therein mentioned, who shall pay the same into the Treasury for the public use of the Colony.

16. The River Demerara (Georgetown Harbour) Boat Regulation, 1897, and the Regulations amending the same, approved by the Governor and Court of Policy on the 3rd day of May, 1900, are hereby repealed.

17. These Regulations shall come into force on the 1st day of April, 1903.

Made by the Harbour Master under the River Navigation Ordinance, 1891, and approved by the Governor and Court of Policy, on the 26th day of November, 1902.

HIS Excellency the Governor directs the publication of the following Circular despatch received from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, with its enclosure :—
CIRCULAR.

Downing Street,
31st October, 1902.

Sir,—I have the honour to inform you that I have learnt from the Foreign Office, that His Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Rome has reported that applications are being received at the British Embassy from various British Colonial subjects, arriving at Italy for purposes of study, who having left their Colony in ignorance of the new regulations with regard to entry without payment to the national museums, galleries, excavations and monuments of Italy, are not furnished with the necessary academic document, upon which free passes are granted.

2. I transmit, therefore, for your information and for such publication as may be considered desirable, a copy of a notice recently issued from the Foreign Office, giving the substance of the law passed in April last, in so far as it affects foreigners coming to Italy for purposes of study.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient, humble Servant,

J. CHAMBERLAIN.

The Officer Administering the Government of British Guiana.

Enclosure to Circular dated 1st November, 1902.

His Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Rome has sent to the Foreign Office the Law regulating entry, without payment of the ordinary fee, to the national museums, galleries, excavations and monuments of Italy, which has been approved by the Royal Decree of the 13th April, 1902.

The privilege of free entry is by the Law accorded to foreigners who are—

(a) Artists.

(b) Art students and art critics, who have issued noteworthy publications.

(c) Professors of Archaeology, History, Literature, and Art.

(d) Pupils of archaeology, historical and art institutions; students in the departments of literature and philosophy, and in schools of practical engineering.

Applications for a general permit for free entry to all museums, &c., must be sent to the Ministry of Public Instruction on stamped paper of 1 lira 20c., with an unmounted photograph (of the applicant) not to exceed 5 centim. by 8 in size.

Applications for free entry to archaeological and artistic institutes in a single town must be sent on stamped paper of 60 centimes to one of the heads of the institutes; and if the permit is required for more than a month, a photograph must be sent of the size mentioned in the preceding paragraph.

The applications must be accompanied by the following documents :—

For persons under (a) and (c), by an academical document visé by the Italian Diplomatic Representative or Consul in the country to which the applicant belongs, or by the Diplomatic Representative of that country in Italy.

For persons under (b), by one of the publications which they have published.

For persons under (d), by an official document showing that they stand on the books of the institutions mentioned under that heading, for the year in which they apply. The document must be visé as in the case of the documents furnished by persons under (a) and (c).

As His Majesty's Diplomatic Representative at Rome is not always in a position to authenticate without previous inquiry documents issued by institutions in the United Kingdom, art students, &c., are recommended to have such documents countersigned by the Italian Consular officers in this country before leaving.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 29TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

MARY JANE EWING

versus

JOSEPH PHILIP BUTTERY,

This is "an application on behalf of the above named defendant for an order that the affidavit of the defendant, sworn to before a person authorised to administer oaths in the Island of Barbados, be read at the hearing and given in evidence on his behalf as though the same were the depositions of the said defendant duly given viva voce upon oath before a Commissioner appointed for that purpose by this Court &c."

The grounds for the application are shortly :

1. That on 17th September, 1902, before applying to the Court for a Commission, defendant's solicitor applied to the plaintiff's solicitor to consent to defendant's evidence being given by affidavit, but plaintiff's solicitor refused to consent and also opposed an application for a Commission.

2. That after the granting of the application for a Commission, plaintiff's solicitor in reply to defendant's solicitor, stated that the plaintiff would not be represented on the Commission.

3. All the benefits of an ex parte examination can be obtained by an affidavit.

4. That on learning plaintiff would not be represented on such Commission, application was again made to defendant's solicitor to consent to evidence being given by affidavit, but no answer was given.

5. Costs of Commission greater than that of an affidavit.

6. Plaintiff has made default in payment of costs she was ordered to pay and has neither money nor property.

7. Defendant will be subjected to great hardship if he be compelled to incur great expense in connection with a Commission when the cost of an affidavit would be very much less and there is no possibility of recovering the cost of a Commission from the plaintiff.

Mr. P. N. Browne, counsel for plaintiff, opposed the application on the ground that the letter of plaintiff's solicitor stating that plaintiff had not the means to employ a solicitor on the Commission did not justify the inference that she would not be represented thereon; she might go to Barbados herself or possibly give a Power of Attorney to some one to represent her. He further contended that even were plaintiff not represented on the Commission, the Commissioner under the Rules of Court had power to examine the witness and that such an examination would be of more value than a mere affidavit by the defendant, and that the Court had no power under Rule 1 of Order 34, to receive affidavits sworn to by a person outside the jurisdiction of the Court.

After hearing counsel on both sides and considering their arguments I am of opinion that this application must be refused. The order granting the Commission was obtained by the defendant and if there be any hardship in the matter it is the result of his own act. I take it that if the Court has power now to direct that defendant's affidavit be received in evidence at the hearing it had the same power before the order granting a Commission. The letter of plaintiff's solicitor stating that his client has not the means to employ a solicitor on the Commission in no way prevents her being represented in some other way, or even of employing a solicitor if she subsequently obtained the means to do so. I cannot agree that the bare affidavit of defendant would be of the same value as his statement made on oath before a Commissioner who has power under Rule 12 of Order 34, to examine a witness. The power of the Court to receive affidavits under Rule 1 of Order 34, is not in my opinion limited to such affidavits as are made within the territorial jurisdiction of the Court.

Application refused with costs.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 29TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1902.

MAHALA BOYCE, Appellant,

versus

W. BOLLERS, Respondent.

This is an appeal against the decision of Mr. F. A. Gall, Stipendiary Magistrate of the East Coast Judicial District, non-suiting the appellant, plaintiff in the Court below, in an action brought by her against the respondent, defendant in the court below, claiming delivery of a cottage value $30, and a kitchen value $10, wrongfully detained by the defendant, or failing such delivery payment of the value of such cottage and kitchen, and $10 damages for such wrongful detention.

The reasons for appeal are:—1. "That the decision of the magistrate is erroneous in point of law, (a) because the complaint was fully established by the evidence and judgment should have been given for the plaintiff and the magistrate was not justified by the evidence to grant a non-suit with costs.

(b.) Because the reasons of the magistrate are erroneous as the relationship of landlord and tenant was not established by the evidence, nor did the evidence show a trespass by the defendant or his wife.

(c.) Because the magistrate misapplied the law as the evidence showed a detention by the defendant and the magistrate ought to have ordered the delivery of the cottage and kitchen in question, or payment of the value thereof and award damages, if any, as is provided by ordinance 11 of 1893."

According to the copy of the Record sent to this Court, the only evidence given before the magistrate was that of the appellant herself, who declared that she bought of the respondent a cottage and a kitchen for $21, but the defendant had never delivered the property thus purchased, although she had on several occasions demanded such delivery from him. She said that respondent had promised to deliver possession but that his wife would not leave the place and was still there. The magistrate's reason for judgment are:—

"I do not consider de Jonge and Payne (? Bayne), as quoted by Mr. Ogle, is applicable in this case. Plaintiff has mistaken her remedy in claiming for detinue which cannot hold inasmuch as defendant has told plaintiff to take possession of the property which he is willing to surrender, but his wife, a third party refuses to allow plaintiff to enter upon this property. It would appear that defendant's wife should be proceeded against, as a trespasser or summon defendant as a tenant at will and have himself and wife ejected from the property. I award a non-suit, fee to counsel $5."

I agree with the magistrate that plaintiff has mistaken her remedy. The sale of the cottage and kitchen not having been completed by delivery, the ownership did not pass to the appellant. If there was an agreement of sale, and of that there appears to be no doubt, it was open to appellant to sue for damages for breach of that agreement; or she might bring an action for specific performance of the contract, but in another court, a magistrate apparently having no jurisdiction in such cases.

The evidence does not disclose any such relationship as that of landlord and tenant between the parties, nor does it appear that an action for trespass would lie against respondent's wife at the instance of appellant. Until delivery of the property has been made, the contract of sale is not completed and the ownership of cottage and kitchen remains in the vendor. Appellant cannot obtain specific performance of the contract of sale by means of an action for detinue. I agree with the conclusion of the magistrate but not with his reasons. The decision is affirmed, but, as the respondent did not appear, without costs.

Persons entitled to apply for patent.

3. (1.) Any person, whether a British subject or not, may make an application for a patent.

possession of an invention, whereof the applicant or one or more of the applicants claims or claim to be the true and first inventor or inventors, and for which the applicant or applicants desires or desire to obtain a patent. The application must be accompanied by either a provisional or complete specification, and must state an address in Georgetown for the reception of notices and other communications with respect to the application or invention.

(3.) The application if signed out of the Colony shall be authenticated in manner required by the Evidence Ordinance, 1893, for proof of documents executed abroad; if signed by the attorney in the Colony of an applicant residing abroad the Power of Attorney shall be authenticated in manner aforesaid.

(4.) A provisional specification must describe the nature of the invention, and be accompanied by drawings, if required.

(5.) A complete specification, whether left on application or subsequently, must particularly describe and ascertain the nature of the invention, and in what manner it is to be performed, and must be accompanied by drawings, if required. Provided that the requirements as to drawings shall not be deemed to be insufficiently complied with by reason only that instead of being accompanied by drawings the complete specification refers to the drawings which accompanied the provisional specification.

(6.) A specification, whether provisional or complete, must commence with the title, and in the case of a complete specification must end with a distinct statement of the invention claimed.

5. The Registrar shall, if he think fit, refer any application to an examiner, who shall ascertain whether the nature of the invention has been fairly described and the application, specification, and drawings (if any) have been prepared in the prescribed manner, and the title sufficiently indicates the subject matter of the invention, and shall report thereon to the Registrar.

Registrar
may refer application to examiner

6. (1.) If the Registrar is of opinion, or if, after reference to an examiner such examiner reports that the nature of the invention is not fairly described, or that the application, specification, or drawings has not or have not been prepared in the prescribed manner, or that the title does not sufficiently indicate the subject-matter of the invention, the Registrar may refuse to accept the application or require that the application, specification, or drawings be amended, before he proceeds with the application; and in the latter case the application shall, if the Registrar so direct, bear date as from the time when the requirement is complied with.

Power for Registrar to refuse application or require amendment.

(2.) Where the Registrar refuses to accept the application or requires an amendment, the applicant may appeal from his decision to the Attorney-General.

(3.) The Attorney-General shall, if required, hear the applicant and the Registrar, and may make an order determining whether and subject to what conditions (if any) the application shall be accepted.

(4.) The Registrar shall, when an application has been accepted, give notice thereof to the applicant.

(5.) If after an application has been made, but before the patent thereon has been sealed, another application for a patent is made, accompanied by a specification bearing the same or a similar title, the Registrar, if he think fit, on the request of the second applicant or of his legal representative may, within two months of the grant of a patent on the first application either decline to proceed with the second application or allow the surrender of the patent, if any, granted thereon.

Time for leaving complete specification.

7. (1.) If the applicant do not leave a complete specification with his application, he may leave it at any subsequent time within nine months from the date of application, and the Registrar may, on payment of the prescribed fee, extend such time to ten months.

(2.) Unless a complete specification is left within nine months or such extended time, the application shall be deemed to be abandoned.

Comparison of provisional and complete specification.

8. (1.) Where a complete specification is left after a provisional specification, the Registrar may, if he think fit, refer both specifications to an examiner for the purpose of ascertaining whether the complete specification has been prepared in the prescribed manner, and whether the invention particularly described in the complete specification is substantially the same as that which is described in the provisional specification.

(2.) If the Registrar is of opinion, or if, after reference to an examiner, such examiner report that the conditions hereinbefore contained have not been complied with, the Registrar may refuse to accept the complete specification unless and until the same shall have been amended to his satisfaction; but any such refusal shall be subject to appeal to the Attorney-General.

(3.) The Attorney General shall, if required, hear the applicant and the Registrar, and may make an order determining whether and subject to what conditions, if any, the complete specification shall be accepted.

(4.) Unless a complete specification is accepted within twelve months from the date of application, or such extended time not exceeding fifteen months from the date of application, as the Registrar on payment of the prescribed fee may allow, then save in the case of an appeal having been lodged against the refusal to accept the application shall, at the expiration of the said twelve months, or such extended time, become void.

A.D. 1902.]PATENTS.*[No. 31.]

(5.) Reports of examiners shall not in any case be published or be open to public inspection, and shall not be liable to production or inspection in any legal proceeding, other than an appeal to the Attorney General under this Ordinance, unless the Court or officer having power to order discovery in such legal proceeding shall certify that such production or inspection is desirable in the interests of justice and ought to be allowed.

9. On the acceptance of the complete specification, the Registrar shall advertise the acceptance in the "Gazette" and the application and specification or specifications with the drawings (if any) shall be open to public inspection.

Advertisement on acceptance of complete
specification

10. (1.) Any person may, at any time within two months from the date of the advertisement of the acceptance of a complete specification, give notice in writing at the Registrar's Office of opposition to the grant of the patent on the ground of an applicant having obtained the invention from him, or from a person of whom he is the legal representative, or on the ground that the invention has been patented in this colony on application of prior date, or on the ground that the complete specification describes or claims an invention other than that described in the provisional specification, and that such other invention forms the subject of an application made by the opponent in the interval between the leaving of the provisional specification and the leaving of the complete specification, but on no other ground.

Opposition to grant of patent.

(2.) Where such notice is given, the Registrar may require the person giving such notice to give security to an amount not exceeding one hundred and twenty dollars for the costs of the opposition; and if the security so required is not given within the said two months, the opposition shall lapse.

(3.) Where such notice and such security, if required, is given, the Registrar shall give notice in writing of the opposition to the applicant, and shall, on the expiration of the said two months, after hearing the applicant and the person so giving notice, if desirous of being heard, decide on the case, but subject to appeal to the Attorney-General.

(4.) The Attorney-General shall, on such appeal, hear the applicant and any person so giving notice and being, in the opinion of the Attorney-General, entitled to be heard in opposition to the grant, and shall determine whether the grant ought or ought not to be made.

(5.) The Attorney-General may, if he think fit, obtain the assistance of an expert, who shall be paid such remuneration as the Attorney-General shall determine.
